GIANTS MAKE IT TWO WINS

BEST BABY CONTESTANTS REACH LAST STAGES OF GREAT STORKLAND TRIALS

Large Proportion of Super-Babies Make Judging Matter of Extreme Care and Exactness; Values Now at Hairline Percentages

CHILDREN BALK THE EFFORTS OF EXAMINERS

Some Refuse to Exhibit the Qualities That Made Them Champions in Their Own Home Circle and Mothers Despair of Results

Thursday the last of the two-year-olds and the babies 1 to 2 years of age were judged by keenly interested physicians at Pendroy's store, the group including Doctors Brown, Smith, Rossiter, Thompson, Dieterich and Baker, and four nurses from the Glendale sanitarium, Misses Mae Johnson, Celena Schleifer, Rose Ulrich and Marcelle Storta.

Today the last of the contestants, the babies 6 months to 1 year, will be reviewed.

Saturday a group of children of the highest rank will be summoned for a critical examination to determine the prize winners. It is not probable that they can be announced before Monday. On that afternoon the winners are to go to the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles to compete with the winners of other districts for the prizes offered by the Los Angeles Express.

There was more music of the tears at Pendroy's Thursday afternoon than has been heard before in the baby contest. Some of the infants lifted up their voices in unqualified disapproval of such examinations and were not susceptible to reason when urged to exhibit their intelligence. No prodding could persuade some of them to exercise their tongues under cross-examination though mothers coaxed and used every wile to tempt them to speech. But they were all dear babies. Some of the doctors declared there were a larger proportion of supreme babies in the hundred that passed through their hands on that day than in any previous examination.

GLENDALE MUSIC CLUB CONCERT IS TRIUMPH

The beautiful concert with which the Glendale Music club began its year Thursday night was most satisfying to the big and enthusiastic audience gathered to enjoy it. The program of John Smallman, who has not been heard in Glendale before, was a treat. His voice of mellow sweetness was delightful both in dramatic numbers and in the lighter ballads and songs. "Invocazione Di Orfeo," was quite a splendid opening number, the group of French songs charming, and his last three numbers, "At Night," (Rachmaninoff); "May Day Carol" (Deems-Taylor), and Cadman's "The West," aroused enthusiasm. He had the advantage of a great accompanist in his associate artist, Claire Forbes Crane, who shared the honors in his encore numbers, "My Menagerie" (Foster). He also sang two love songs as encores, the last that imperishable favorite of a passing generation, "Cenevieve."

Miss Crane proved a musical wizard in the bell-like and sometimes harp-like resonance of the tones she evoked from the piano, even in wonderful, airy runs. She has the imagination, humor, sentiment and technique which makes possible a wide range of interpretations. In descriptive music she especially pleased her audience, though every number won instant, spontaneous applause. Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" was very beautifully played; Rachmaninoff's "Polichnelle" was a delightful novelty to many listeners, as was also Liszt's Rhapsody No. 10," which was the climax and last number on the program.

Julius Kranz, for whom Miss Gertrude Champlain served most acceptably as piano accompanist, received an enthusiastic welcome when he appeared to play the trio of his own compositions, "A Recollection," "A Fancy," and "At Twilight." The applause was cumulative amounting to an ovation to which he responded by playing again the melodious third number.

Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, the president of the club, spoke a few words of greeting congratulating the club on the auspicious beginning of a new year and promised more programs as good as this one.

ROTARY CLUB HAS FINE MEETING

George B. Karr Reports on Field Day to Be Held Oct. 7

The regular noonday meeting and luncheon of the Glendale Rotary club was held Thursday in the chamber of commerce auditorium. The attendance was very good. There were several visiting Rotarians present as well as other visitors which filled the seating capacity. Among the visitors was a delegation from the Boy Scouts, who told of the work they had been doing.

Community singing was led by France Henry in his usual good manner. George B. Karr, chairman of Field day, which is to be held Saturday, October 7, at Glendale Verdugo park, gave a report as to the progress of his committee. This will be a big affair and the baseball game between the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs is creating considerable interest. The proceeds of this field meet will go to the Boy Scouts. Every Rotarian was urged to get a big crowd out at this affair.

Val Hollister, chairman of the committee on "Better Business Methods Week," made a report on his committee. President Roy L. Kent told about the Rotary convention at Berkeley.

After the regular business was transacted, the meeting was turned over to Scout Executive Harold Benner and his scouts, who gave quite an interesting review of the work being accomplished by the Boy Scouts, especially in the Verdugo Hills district.

HAYHURST'S SQUAD DEFEATS BURBANK

Coach Hayhurst's undefeated grid squad yesterday scored another victory when they trimmed a team from Burbank high, 30 to 0.

The Burbank eleven was powerless and could not stem the onrush of the local warriors. Glendale crossed the line twice in the first five minutes of play.

OUTLUCKED IN THE BREAKS SAYS HUGGINS

(By MILLER HUGGINS)
Manager New York Yankees
(Written for United Press. Copyright, 1922, by United Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—When you get 19 innings of perfect defensive play and 16 ciphers from your pitchers in two games, it can be said that you are going at a real world series speed. The Yankees have done that and yet we haven't won a game simply because we have been outlucked and have lost all the breaks.

One slip in the ninth inning prevented the Yankees from winning yesterday. If Shawkey had sacrificed after Scott's single in the ninth, we would have had the winning run on Witt's single and there would have been no scene after the game.

There was no question in my mind that the decision of the umpires calling the game favored the giants more than the Yanks, because I believe we would have won in the eleventh inning.

The Yankees are finding themselves and are beginning to hit again. It is only natural that they should be under some strain and it has affected their batting.

After the first inning yesterday Bob Shawkey pitched a superb game. There is no gamer or more steady pitcher in baseball than Shawkey. It was a break that prevented him from getting a shutout. On most any other field Meusel's homer that tallied three runs in the first inning would have been a sure out for a fast fielder.

Waite Hoyt will do the pitching today and he'll win if he gets a couple of runs. The most encouraging thing is the indication of yesterday that Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel are starting to hit again. With the array of pitchers we have and a couple of big sticks, I don't see how we can lose.

I think the Giants have reached the end of their string. They are down now to the less able hurlers of their pitching staff and the Yankees are ready to come on with a rush.

RICHARDSON CLUB TO ORGANIZE AT HI MONDAY

Meeting Is Called for Eight o'Clock in the Evening

The organization meeting of the Richardson-for-Governor club will be held in the Glendale high school autditorium, Monday night at 8 o'clock. A number of the most prominent men of Glendale, including members from practically all of the political parties, are among those calling this meeting. These men believe that Friend Richardson is the man who should be the next governor of California, and this club is being organized in conjunction with hundreds of others in California with the aim of giving Richardson the biggest vote that has been received by any candidate in this state for years.

Members of all parties are invited to attend this meeting and to join the club. The call is being extended to all good citizens who feel that California is gradually slipping back into the clutches of the corporations, and that a man like Richardson is needed right now to lift this state back to the place it belongs.

A call was issued yesterday to all persons interested in the election of Friend W. Richardson for governor of the state of California this fall, to attend a meeting at the high school auditorium on Monday evening, October 9, at 8 o'clock sharp, for the purpose of organizing a "Richardson for governor club." The call was signed by Geo. B. Woodberry, H. M. Butts, Robert Plume, Wm. Thompson, John Everson, Capt. Thos. D. Watson, A. H. Davis, J. C. Sherer, F. H. Lowe.

BURGLARS ROB SHERRODD HOME

Thieves broke into the home of Dr. R. W. Sherrod, 112 East Broadway, Wednesday nuight, entrance being gained to the building through the transom. About $200 worth of material was stolen. No trace of the thieves has as yet been found.

AUTO ACCIDENTS

Three auto accidents occured in Glendale Thursday. Machines driven by Charles A. Flagg, 140 South Pacific, and A. Zimmerman of Los Angeles, collided on San Fernando road at 9:15 o'clock. Little damage was done.

Joseph Karany, 219 West Broadway, was driving a machine that collided with the Glendale-Eagle Rock electric car at the corner of Louise and Broadway at 5 o'clock. No one was injured.

Henry Price, 333 Acacia, and E. N. Bishop of 110 East Broadway were operating machines that came together at 340 West Myrtle street at 2:30 in the afternoon. The damage was slight.

CITY SEEKS MORE WATER IN CANYON

Initial Steps Taken at the Meeting of the Council

WAY TO GET CONTROL

Defeated in Previous Efforts Glendale Will Try Again

The initial step in the endeavor to secure the water available in Verdugo canyon for the city of Glendale was taken last night by the Glendale city council. This consisted of instructing the city attorney, city manager and superintendent of plant and production to determine the possibility of securing this water and to ascertain the best way, if possible, of accomplishing the desired result, and to report to the council at the earliest possible moment.

The action was brought about by the statements made to the board by Dr. Harry Crocker, a resident of Verdugo canyon. He said he had ascertained for a certainty that it is now possible for Glendale to secure the water in question and that the present owners of the water rights are willing to turn them over to the city.

After a short discussion, in which every councilman expressed himself as being extremely favorable to making an effort to get the water, Councilman Stevenson moved that the various city officials named be instructed to take up this matter at once. This motion was seconded by Councilman Lapham and it received a unanimous vote.

The city of Glendale has made several attempts to secure the rights to the water of Verdugo canyon, but on each occasion something has come up that made it impossible for the city to acquire it. The present attempt is being made for the reason that the way seems to be opening up for the securing of the much desired water rights.

DANIELSON IN ACCIDENT

J. Danielson of 442 Maple avenue, Glendale, was driving a truck that collided in Monrovia Thursday with a touring car driven by Mrs. Ella Demark of 78 Yale street, Pasadena. No one was injured.

THE WEATHER

Southern California—Tonight and Saturday, fair.

Los Angeles and vicinity—Fair and moderately cool tonight and Saturday.

Too Busy.

—By Ripley.

GIANTS—0 0 2 0 0 0 1 0 0—3 12 1
YANKS—0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 4 1

The Yanks went down to a scoreless defeat at the end of the third game of the world series, as the result of the perfect pitching of J. Scott, coupled with matchless support on the field and bases.

Hoyt, pitching for the Yanks, allowed two runs in the third and one in the seventh. He was taken out in the eighth for a pinch hitter. Jones held the Giants gamely to the end.

Ruth opened the inning for the Yanks, as a forlorn hope for the home run that might stage a comeback. He was out on a foul. Frisch went out to Kelly on a roller. Pipp was up. He was out to Bancroft to Kelly and R. Meusel was up and fielded out. The story was told. The first shutout game had been won in the series.

The Lineup for for Third Game of the World's Series

The lineup—

YANKS—Witt, cf; Dugan, 3b; Ruth, lf; Pipp, 1b; R. Meusel, lf; Schang, c; Ward, 2b; Scott, ss; Hoyt, p.

GIANTS—Bancroft, ss; Groh, 3b; Frisch, 2b; E. Meusel, lf; Young, rf; Kelly, 1b; Cunningham, cf; E. Smith, c; J. Scott, p.

UMPIRES—McCormick at plate; Owens at first base; Klem at second base; Hildebrand at third base.

FIRST INNING

YANKS—Witt up. Strike 1, called. Ball 1. Ball 2. Witt out, Scott to Kelly on a bunt. Dugan up.

Strike 1, called. Ball 1. Ball 2. Dugan fied to Young. It was a long high drive. Ruth up. Ball 1. Strike 1, swung. Strike 2, swung. Ball 2. Ruth out, Frisch to Kelly on an infield roller. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Scott was using nothing but a fast ball. He got Ruth to swing wildly at two fast ones on the inside and then forced him to dump one down in the infield.

GIANTS—Bancroft up. Strike 1, called. Bancroft out, Hoyt unassisted on a bunt. Pipp was ready and in position for the putout but Hoyt outsped Bancroft to the bag. Groh up. Strike 1, called. Groh singled to right, a line drive, Ruth holding him at first with a nice throw in. Frisch up. Ball 1. Strike 1, called. Frisch singled through the box to center, Witt holding Groh at second. E. Meusel up. Strike 1, called. Foul, strike 2. Ball 1. Ball 2. Meusel lined into a double play, Ward to Pipp. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Ward leaped high in the air and pulled down Meusel's drive for a beautiful play. Hoyt apparently was off form. He was using nothing but a straight fast ball.

SECOND INNING

YANKS—Pipp up. Ball 1. Strike 1. called. Pipp singled to right. R. Meusel up. Strike 1, called. Smith tried to nip Pipp at first but failed. Ball 2. Meusel fouled to Kelly. Schang up. Foul, strike 1. Strike 2, swung. Schang flied to Cunningham. Ward up. Strike 1, called. Ball 1. Ball 2. Strike 2, swung. Pipp stole second.

Foul. Ball 3. Ward out, Bancroft to Kelly. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Scott continued to rely on a fast ball. He served them all low in the first inning, but switched to high ones in the second. He had plenty of speed but the Yanks were beginning to connect.

GIANTS—Young up. Strike 1, swung. Foul, strike 2. Ball 1. Young dropped a single in the left field between Scott and Meusel but was out at second, Meusel to Ward. Kelly up. Foul, strike 1. Foul, strike 2. Foul. Ball 1. Ball 2. Kelly out, Scott to Pipp. Cunningham up. Ball 1. Strike 1, called. Ball 2. Strike 2, called. Cunningham singled over first. Smith up. Foul, strike 1. Smith forced Cunningham at second, Ward to Scott. No runs, two hits, no errors.

The sun dropped behind the grand stand and a dark haze settled over the playing field. It was as dark as when the game was called yesterday. Hoyt started to use a curve ball rather effectively. He was saved from trouble when Meusel made a wonderful throw to second on Young.

THIRD INNING

YANKS—E. Scott up. Strike 1, called. Scott flied to Young. Hoyt up. Ball 1. Ball 2. Strike 1, called. Hoyt out, Frisch to Kelly. Witt up. Ball 1. Strike 1, called. Ball 3. Strike 2, called. Witt walked. Dugan up. Ball 1. Strike 1, called. Witt was nipped off first, Smith to Kelly. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Witt was found asleep about two feet off the base. Smith got the ball to Kelly so fast that Witt was tagged out without moving from his place. The crowd gave him the razz.

GIANTS—J. Scott up. Strike 1, called. Scott singled past E. Scott. Bancroft up. Strike 1, called. Ball 1. Bancroft was safe at first and J. Scott went to third when Ward muffed Bancroft's roller. Groh up. Groh hit to Hoyt and Scott was run down between third and home, Hoyt to Schang to Dugan. Bancroft went to third and Groh to second on the run down. Frisch up. Ball 1. Frisch flied to Witt in deep center, Bancroft scoring and Groh taking third after the catch. E. Meusel up. Foul, strike 1. Ball 1. Strike 2, called. Foul. Meusel singled to right, scoring Groh. Young up; Young forced Meusel, Ward to E. Scott. Two runs, two hits, one error.

The Yanks went to pieces after Witt's boner on the bases and their defense collapsed. Hoyt was also unnerved by the warble and weakened.

FOURTH INNING

YANKS—Dugan up. Dugan out, Groh to Kelly on the first ball pitched. a fast play. Ruth up. Ball 1. Ball 2. Ruth was hit by a pitched ball. Pipp up. Strike 1, called. Ball 1. Strike 2, swung. Pipp fanned and Ruth was nearly doubled at first. R. Meusel up. Strike 1, swung. Foul, strike 2. Foul. Ball 1. Ball 2. Meusel was safe when Frisch muffed his sharp roller. Ruth tried to reach third and was out, Bancroft to Groh. No runs, no hits, one error.

Ruth charged into Groh at third and knocked him rolling. Groh jumped up and started for Babe. The umpire stepped between them and stopped the impending battle.

GIANTS—Kelly up. Foul, strike 1. Strike 2, called. Foul. Foul. Kelly safe at first on a single to Ward. Cunningham up. Ball 1. Kelly out stealing, Schang to E. Scott. Strike 1, called. Cunningham out, Dugan to Pipp. Smith up. Smith hit down left foul line for a single on the first ball. Meusel's fine throw prevented a double. J. Scott up. Strike 1 ,called. Foul, strike 2. Scott out on three strikes. No runs, two hits, no errors.

The haze lifted and the players' field became brighter with some sunshine in deep center. Groh and Ruth resumed their argument as the Babe came in from the field. The umpires again stepped up and the Babe went on his way to the dugout.

FIFTH INNING

YANKS—Schang up. Foul, strike 1. Foul, strike 2. Ball 1. Ball 2. Foul. Schang out, Kelly to J. Scott, who covered first. Ward up. Foul strike 1. Strike 2, called. Ball 1. Ward flied to Cunningham, on an easy chance. E. Scott up. Strike 1, called. Scott fouled to Groh in front of the dugout. No runs, no hits, no errors.

J. Scott continued to serve fast balls, mixing them high and low. He had the Yanks swinging hard and late at them.

GIANTS—Bancroft up. Ball 1. Foul strike 1. Strike 2, called. Ball 2. Bancroft out on three strikes. Groh up. Groh out, Dugan to Pipp on a bunt. Frisch up. Foul. strike 1. Ball 1. Strike 2, called. Ball 2. Ball 3. Frisch walked. E. Meusel up. Foul, strike 1. Ball 1. Frisch out stealing, Schang to E. Scott on a close play. No runs, no hits, no errors.

The Giants tried a bunting attack and failed. After Groh had been thrown out on a bunt, Frisch tried another with two down, but fouled. The Yanks seemed to be collecting themselves.

SIXTH INNING

YANKS—Hoyt up. Foul, strike 1. Ball 1. Hoyt singled to right center. Witt up. Strike 1, called. Witt forced Hoyt at second, Bancroft to Frisch and saved being doubled by a step. Dugan up. Strike 1, called. Foul, strike 2. Dugan flied to Meusel. Ruth up. Strike 1, swung. Ball 1. Ruth grounded to Kelly, unassisted. No runs, ont hit, no errors.

Scott was still working effectively. He had held the Yanks to two singles in six innings and had them baffled with his fast ball and curves.

GIANTS—E. Meusel up. Ball 1. Meusel flied to R. Meusel, who came in fast for the catch. Young up. Strike 1, called. Young singled to left in front of R. Meusel. Kelly up. Ball 1. Ball 2. Foul, strike 1. Kelly fouled to Pipp over near the stands. Cunningham up. Cunningham out, Ward to Pipp on the first ball, an easy chance. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Hoyt started the usual curve and got the side easily. Bob Meusel robbed his brother of what seemed a sure hit by a nice running catch.

SEVENTH INNING

YANKS—Pipp up. Pipp out, Frisch to Kelly on the first ball pitched. R. Meusel up. Strike 1, swung. Ball 1. Ball 2. Foul, strike 2. Meusel beat out an infield hit which bounced high over J. Scott's head and was too low for Frisch. Schang up. Schang doubled to right, Meusel stopping at third. Elmer Smith batting for Ward instead of Baker. Elmer Smith up. Strike 1, called. Ball 1. Ball 2. Ball 3. Strike 2, swung. Elmer Smith fanned. E. Scott up. Foul, strike 1. Ball 1. Scott out, Bancroft to Kelly. No runs, two hits, no errors.

J. Scott worked courageously out of a very bad hole. The Giants had three pitchers warming up.

GIANTS—McNally now playing second instead of Ward for the Yanks. Smith up. Strike 1, called. Smith out, Hoyt to Pipp on an easy tap to the box. J. Scott up. J. Scott out, Dugan to Pipp on the first ball. Bancroft up. Strike 1, swung. Ball 1. Strike 2, called. Ball 2. Foul. Ball 3. Bancroft walked. Groh up. Groh singled to right on a hit and run play, Bancroft going to third. Frisch up. Frisch singled to right, scoring Bancroft and sending Groh to third. E. Meusel up. Meusel out, McNally to Pipp. One run, two hits, no errors.

Totals end 7th—

YANKS	0	4	1
GIANTS	3	11	1

The Giants got their hit and run game working and threatened to blow Hoyt out of the box.

EIGHTH INNING

YANKS—Baker batting for Hoyt. Baker up. Ball 1. Baker out, Kelly Kelly. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ball 1. Strike 1, called. Witt flied to Cuningham. Dugan out, Groh to unassisted on an easy roller. Witt up.

GIANTS—Jones now pitching for Yanks. Young up. Ball 1. Strike 1, called. Ball 2. Ball 3. Strike 2, called. Young singled past McNally. Kelly up. Ball 1. Foul, strike 1. Kelly sacrificed, Jones to Pipp. Cunningham up. Strike 1, swung. Strike 2, called. Ball 1. Ball 2. Ball 3. Cuningham walked. Earl Smith up. Ball 1. Smith flied to McNally in short right field. No runner advanced. J. Scott up. Foul, strike 1. Strike 2, called. Ball 1. J. Scott fouled to Dugan. No runs, one hit, no errors.

NINTH INNING

YANKS—Ruth up. Ball 1. Strike 1, swung. Foul, strike 2. Ruth out, Frisch to Kelly on an easy roller. Pipp up. Foul, strike 1. Ball 1. Ball 2. Pipp out, Bancroft to Kelly on a spectacular stop and throw. R. Meusel up. Meusel out, Bancroft to Kelly. No runs, no hits, no errors.

FANDOM FORGETS FURY AND FACES THIRD GAME

Receipts of Yesterday to Go to Wounded Soldiers' Fund

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Staff Correspondent

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Calm and peaceful after the riot of yesterday, the Polo Grounds at 12:45 today looked like a deserted battle ground at the front.

Faint rumbles of the raucous razz that fell upon Commissioner Landis and the players when yesterday's game was stopped in the 10th inning, rolled out of the bleachers occasionally. Some vocal artillery apparently was getting tuned up for action.

The bleachers and upper stands were practically filled at noon and through the entrances steady lines of customers were streaming. It was obvious that fandom was not leaning toward a boycott in reprisal for yesterday's incident.

Weather conditions were more pleasant. The sun was dimmed in a haze-laden sky and it lacked the intensity of heat that had the stands and bleachers in shirt sleeves yesterday.

The Giants, first on the field, escaped a razzing. As they filed in from the center field gate, they were given a fair sized hand, with a few scattered whistles. As the players neared the dugout the fans in the reserved section of the stands took it up and gave a few claps. The team put a bunch of balls in action back and forth and sat apparently uninterested. The bleachers were given some early entertainment by the fun firm of Altrock and Schacht. A wrestling act, in which Altrock threw Schacht with a patented hold on the nose, brought the first signs of real life from the crowd. Their golf and tennis numbers and a snake dance with a string of hot dogs as the reptile also drew a big laugh.

The sky was becoming so hazy that at times it was almost as dark as when the game was stopped yesterday. The far section of the center field bleachers was almost blurred.

Casey Stengel was unofficially announced from the Giant dugout as unfit for action today and it was said that Bill Cunningham, the California boy, will be in center field. Stengel is still crippled with a charleyhorse, but he may be able to work tomorrow.

Blume, the college pitcher, went to the mound when the Giants, working as the home team, started batting practice. All the regulars and the reserves were taking their turn at bat. Hugh McQuillan was the only one of McGraw's pitchers on the field.

Resolutions asking the Giants and the Yankees to turn over the receipts of yesterday's game exclusively for the relief of wounded soldiers were adopted at a meeting of the Baseball Writers' Association before the game. The association also nominated Sid Mercer of New York, Denman Thompson of Washington, Ed Bang of Cleveland and Ed Ballinger of Pittsburgh to take a two weeks' hunting trip as guests of the Canadian Pacific railway this fall.

Sale of tickets for the bleachers was stopped at 1:10 and a good sized crowd standing in line was turned back. Very few seats remained in the upper stand and it was apparent that another S. R. O. day would be in order.

MOVIE ACTOR TO PLAY BALL HERE

Announcement was made today by Manager Cobb of the Glendale Merchants that Bob Bradbury, a local moving picture actor, and Johnny Lovell, a student at the high school, will pitch for the Merchants in their game with the Eagle Rock Eagles at San Fernando and Park on Saturday.

Both Bradbury and Lovell have pitched for the high school nine. Manager Cobb is confident that they will clip the wings of the Eagles. Bob is a son of Robert North Bradbury, a prominent moving picture director.

The game is to be staged under the auspices of the Kiwanis-Rotary Field Day for the benefit of the Boy Scouts.

Society
LODGES — CLUBS — CHURCHES

MRS. HEARNSHAW ENTERTAINS CLUB

Mrs. J. T. Hearnshaw, 358 West Lomita avenue, was hostess Wednesday afternoon to the members of the Wednesday Club.

A delicious luncheon was served at 1 o'clock and the afternoon was spent in sewing and embroidering. Guests of the club were Mrs. S. E. Allen and Mrs. E. Botsford, both of Glendale.

Members present included Mrs. Charles Sanders, Mrs. Frank Hester, Mrs. Alfred Muhleman, Mrs. William A. Gibson, Mrs. H. Lee Clotworthy, Mrs. William A. Nash, Mrs. Julia Perkins, Mrs. Charles Glover, Mrs. Charles Freshman of Los Angeles, Mrs. George E. Roach and Miss Clara Ringert.

DORAN P.-T. A. BEGINS WORK

Committee chairmen were appointed yesterday at the first fall meeting of the Doran street P.-T. A. held at the school. They include: Ways and means, Mrs. Owen Emery; membership, Mrs. Hankey; courtesy, Mrs. P. A. Olsen; education, Mrs. Nickells; philanthropy, Mrs. Sloat; publicity and program, Mrs. H. V. Ellis; patriotism, Mrs. Mabel Douglas; juvenile court, Mrs. Everington; playground, Miss Land; parliamentarian, Mrs. Speck; thrift, Mrs. A. B. Woodside; emblem and magazine, Mrs. Piercey.

The meeting opened by dedicating the new piano with two piano solos rendered by little Miss Florence Brown, an exceptionally talented pianist. This was followed by a talk by W. C. Anspach on the proposed legislation for the financing of homes for ex-service men, which was very interesting.

Supt. Richardson D. White talked along general lines of the ideals and purposes of P.-T. A. Mrs. E. B. Moore, federation president, gave a word of greeting and urged every one to attend the "Teachers' Welcome" Friday night at the boys' gymnasium of the high school.

Room mothers were appointed as follows: Kindergarten, Mrs. A. B. Woodside; first, Mrs. S. Smith; second, Mrs. Hankey; third, Mrs. J. M. Fife; fourth, Mrs. McCormick; fifth, Mrs. Brown; sixth, Mrs. McKee.

At the close of the meeting, iced tea and wafers were served. Miss Agnes Tupper's room was awarded the picture this time for having the most mothers present.

REV. TINNING ELECTED HEAD

The Glendale Ministerial association elected at their meeting Wednesday at the First Presbyterian church, Rev. Louis Tinning as president and Rex Kelley as secretary.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH RESUMES PROGRAM

The church night suppers that had been discontinued while the new church was in the course of construction were resumed last night at Central Christian church with an unprecedented attendance of 173.

After the bountiful supper a service of song, brief sermon by the pastor and prayer was held, the small children going in the meantime to an adjoining room for a little service of their own, a story-telling hour, presided over by Miss Garnet Peters.

After the close of their service the older folk had a short social time together, then adjourned to the room occupied by the children, where Rev. Cole showed some beautiful stereopticon views of scenes in Yellowstone and Yosemite valley and the Grand Canyon, after which there was another short season of social intercourse, then adjournment. Meantime the Bible school cabinet held its regular monthly business meeting.

The church night is to be a regular feature of the church services and is designed to do away with so many week nights of church work.

The official board will transact its business on the first Wednesday night of each month, the Bible school cabinet on the second, the adult Bible classes on the third and the committees of the official board on the fourth. When there is a fifth Wednesday night it is to be family night.

SHRINERS' HALLOWE'EN PARTY IS PLANNED

Plans were made last night for a Hallowe'en party to be given by the Shriners of Glendale October 25 at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. This affair was discussed at their regular business meeting and promises to be one of the most unique affairs ever held in Glendale.

The committee who will have charge of the evening is headed by George Karr and they promise a wonderful evening for all Shriners and their families.

MUTUAL BENEFIT READING CIRCLE

Wednesday's meeting of the Mutual Benefit Reading Circle was another record meeting in point of attendance, for there were more than 60 ladies present.

Mrs. H. V. Henry, vice president, presided. The review was given by Mrs. W. W. Stofft and was called "Up Grade, But We're On the Way." Next week's review will be on "Educating Illiterate America" and will be given by Mrs. McLane.

Several chapters from the book "Mothers and Children," by Dorothy Canfield Fischer, were read by Mrs. H. V. Henry.

GIRL ATHLETES HOLD MEETING

Members of the Girls' Athletic club of Glendale high had their second meeting, and a most enthusiastic one, Wednesday night with about 50 present. Plans were made for a hike to Griffith park next Saturday at 8:30 a. m., accompanied by Miss Florence Knight and by several mothers. Orrell Hester is president of the club, Cora Hilton, vice president; Winifred Spindler, secretary; Ruth Hunt, treasurer.

SPANISH WAR VETS HOLD BIG SMOKER

The smoker held by the Glendale organization of Spanish-American War Veterans in Legion hall last night proved to be a very enjoyable affair. About thirty members of the organization and visitors were present and a general good free-for-all time was experienced. A number of visitors from Van Nuys were present and contributed to the pleasure of the evening.

FEDERATED BROTHERHOOD TO HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

The annual banquet and election of officers of the Federated Brotherhoods will be held in the Christian church on Tuesday evening, October 17 at 6:30. The address of the evening will be given by Federal Judge Benjamin F. Bledsoe of Los Angeles. The men of this church are urged to be present. Tickets 50 cents each. Kindly help the committee by getting your ticket early.

INTERDENOMINATIONAL BIBLE CLASS MEETING

The Wednesday Morning Interdenominational Bible class met for their monthly all-day meeting on Thursday, at the home of Mrs. Edwin R. Hamilton, 216 North Jackson street. Mrs. J. H. Culver is president of the class and Mrs. J. Rhea Baker is teacher.

Home missionary sewing occupied a greater part of the day. Mrs. Van Loon made a report on foreign and Jewish work done and Mrs. E. N. Smith reported on home missionary work. It was reported by Mrs. Harry Cobb that a total of 116 women attended the four class meetings during the past month, which is a splendid attendance.

A quilt was completed yesterday to be presented to missionaries who are returning to China and who are friends of the class. The ladies enjoyed a luncheon at noon.

The next meeting will be held the first Thursday in November. The class meets every Wednesday morning at the home of their teacher, Mrs. J. Rhea Baker, 331 North Maryland avenue.

COLORADO P.-T. A. HAS POPULAR MEETING

More than eighty mothers came out on Thursday afternoon to attend the first fall session of the Colorado Street Parent-Teacher association, held at the school. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. E. S. McKee, the first number being the salute to the flag and the singing of "America," led by the patriotic chairman, Miss Fambrough.

Prof. R. D. White gave a short talk on the meaning of P.-T. A. and a word of greeting was given by the federation president, Mrs. E. B. Moore. A four-minute talk was given by a member of the American Legion, urging everyone to vote for the soldiers' bonus. The Colorado P.-T. A. went on record as endorsing this resolution.

Mrs. Smith, secretary turned in her resignation on account of ill health and Mrs. C. U. Mandis was elected to fill the vacancy.

Chairmen for the coming year were appointed as follows:

Mrs. Lewis, historian; Miss Ross, auditor; Miss Waite, membership and financial chairman; Mrs. Frank Arnold, publicity; Miss Hamell, educational chairman; Mrs. McClane, philanthropic chairman; Miss Fambrough, patriotic chairman; Mrs. Coker, visiting chairman; Mrs. King, courtesy chairman; Miss Ross, playground; Mrs. John Camphouse, juvenile court and probation chairman; Miss Branden, kindergarten; Miss Whitler, emblem and magazine; Mrs. Collins, home economics; Mrs. Scharnakow, program, and Mrs. Reed, child hygiene.

The W. C. T. U. will meet Friday afternoon with Mrs. O. L. Kilborn, 217 West Lomita avenue. An interesting meeting is planned and every member is urged to attend.

MRS. CHAPPELL ENTERTAINS DRIVE CLUB

Mrs. A. R. Chappell of 338 Vine street entertained the Pioneer Drive club at luncheon on Wednesday.

The ladies spent the afternoon in sewing and several musical numbers were enjoyed.

Those present included Mrs. I. D. Vinton, Mrs. C. M. Van Dyke, Mrs. Clarence Challis, Mrs. R. E. Frey, Mrs. H. L. Bullinger, Mrs. Herbert Whitaker, Mrs. Shepherd. Guests of the club were Mrs. L. P. Abell and Mrs. L. T. Rowley.

CENTRAL P.-T. A. DRIVE EXTENDED

One more week is given for the membership campaign of the Central P. T. A. The campaign is being carried on as a contest and the room that secures the most members will be given a cash prize of $5 to make whatever purchase desired by the pupils for the room.

Records are kept of the attendance at each meeting of the P.-T. A., and at the end of the year the room which receives the highest average on representation will be given permanently the prize. This prize, which is to be decided upon, after each meeting will go to the room receiving the highest representation. Mrs. Essie Davis Koen's class of kindergarteners took first place at the meeting Wednesday.

Supt. E. E. Harwood delivered a talk upon "Our Schools" at the meeting October 4, which was the first of the meetings on the schedule for the year. The entire program for the school year has been made out and many events of interest are planned. There are twelve more meetings on the schedule, each one planned to cover some special phase of school life and problems.

Officers of the Central P.-T. A. for this year are as follows: President, Mrs. A. W. Harrison; first vice president, Mrs. J. B. Squire; second vice president, Mrs. G. E. Arbogast; third vice president, Mrs. W. A. Sampson; secretary, Mrs. W. A. Quarterman; treasurer, Mrs. Robert Gibson.

The purpose of the P.-T. A. is to help the children, parents and teachers to co-operate in their work. Almost 75 per cent of the membership dues are paid into the milk fund, which is kept up in order to supply under-fed children in the poorer districts of Los Angeles with milk. The remainder goes into the general fund for expenses.

Charles Ray in the "Old Swimmin' Hole" will be at the Central school this evening, given under the auspices of the P.-T. A. The fifth instalment of "Robinson Crusoe" will also be shown.

CITY DADS WERE BUSY LAST NIGHT

The proceedings for the opening of Broadway at Central were ordered abandoned by the Glendale city council last night. There was a 62 per cent protest against the work and this automatically killed the proceedings.

Bids for the improvement of Palmer avenue, and bids, also, for the improvement of Wilson avenue were opened and referred to the city engineer for checking and report.

The matter of protests against the opening and widening of Kenneth road was taken up. As there was a 30 per cent protest, it was ordered denied.

A minority protest against the improvement of Kenneth road was denied.

A minority protest against the widening of Colorado street from Glendale avenue to the east city limits was ordered denied. It was stated that if it could be widened by removing the parkway, the council will be glad to work with the property owners to this extent.

The matter of the widening of Mountain street was taken up. The matter was continued for one week.

As there were no protests against the improvement, the next step was ordered taken.

There were no protests against the improvement of Myrtle street and the next step in this work was ordered taken.

The city attorney was instructed to bring in a resolution ordering the setting aside of Isabel from Lexington to Doran, as a first-class residential district.

The city attorney was also instructed to bring in a resolution for the setting aside of lots 73 and 74, tract 4478, as a commercial district.

The assessment as made by City Engineer Hill on the work of Everett street, was sustained.

Chief of Police was instructed to employ only one man for the purpose of dog catching.

The demand for $375 was ordered drawn in favor of the Southern California Gas company, this to be in payment for gas mains, etc.

The following ordinances were adopted:

An ordinance establishing the grade of Ruberta, Clement Drive, etc.

An ordinance of intention to open and widen Harvard street.

An ordinance of intention to dedicate for street purposes a portion of Adams street.

An ordinance dedicating for street purposes a portion of Monterey road.

An ordinance calling an election in municipal improvement district [illegible]

The following resolutions were adopted:

A resolution ordering the opening and widening of Ivy street.

A resolution ordering the work on Stanley avenue.

A resolution ordering the work on Thompson, Lowden, and Allen streets.

A resolution ordering the street superintendent of plant and production to bid for the work on Thompson avenue.

An ordinance of intention for the improvement of Monterey road.

An ordinance of intention was adopted declaring the intention of opening and widening of Oak street.

The contract for the improvement of Doran street was awarded to W. J. Kerns.

The contract for the improvement of Glenwood road and Kenneth road was awarded to E. L. Fleming.

Host—What do you think of my oaks?

Guest—Oh, all right. Where do you get them?

NOVEL COMEDY AT THE GLENDALE THEATRE

Gladys Walton can be seen in a new sort of role at the Glendale theater today and tomorrow.

It is not only new for her but new to the screen. It is a role picturized from the popular song, "Second Hand Hose," which was a hit immediately after its publication by Shapiro Bernstein and company, and which seems destined to last as long as people love popular music.

The figure of "Second Hand Rose" was suggested to Universal officials as the heroine of a screen story. A. P. Younger, a scenario writer, was assigned to follow his ideas in the matter and write a story suitable for Miss Walton.

Lloyd Ingraham, assigned to direct, chose Jack Dougherty, Edward Sutherland, Walter Perry, Max Davidson and a list of popular players to support the star. He has put into the picture the same touch of sweet sentiment with which he invested "Lavender and Old Lace," his former success.

Of course the song, "Second Hand Rose," will be played in conjunction with the showing of the picture. It is one of those odd little popular songs which contain real characterization in melody and therefore may never grow old.

HIGH DISTRICT TEACHERS TO MEET

Monday has been set aside as Teachers' Institute Day at the Glendale high school and all teachers from the Glendale high school district will be present. The speaker for the morning will be Marton E. Hill, principal of the high school and junior high at Ontario.

The high school will furnish the musical program for the morning, the Boys' Glee Club and the orchestra giving numbers under the direction of Mrs. Dora Gibson. Mr. Moyse will preside at the morning session.

In the afternoon the audience will be addressed by Henry A. Adrian, a well known Chautauqua lecturer and a very fluent speaker. Richardson D. White, city superintendent of schools will preside in the afternoon and a musical program will be furnished by the city schools.

Mr. Lowe from the county superintendent's office will represent that office for the day. Another institute day will be held some time in November and three days, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of the week before Christmas, have been set aside for this purpose and meetings will be held in Los Angeles.

A luncheon will be served at noon Monday in the high school cafeteria for the convenience of those who care to eat there. Luncheon will be 40 cents per plate.

The futurist painter was visiting the house of his only patron.

"Oh, by the way," said his host, "did you hear about the burglary here the other night?"

"No. Did they get much?"

"No. Not as much as they might have done. A couple of clocks, some silver and—you know that picture I've just bought from you? They cut it out of its frame, and——"

"Did they?" cried the delighted artist. "My fortune's made! This is just the advertisement I've been looking for for years!"

"And went off with the frame!" concluded his patron sadly.

HERE I AM! ASK ME!

The Glendale Daily Press has arranged to present a series of articles which begin today giving information concerning the Boy Scouts of America and of the Verdugo Hills District Council, which includes the cities and communities of Glendale, Burbank, Roscoe, Sunland, Tujunga, La Crescenta, Montrose, Casa Verdugo and Eagle Rock. Look for these articles if you want to know the facts.

By HAROLD F. BENNER,
Scout Executive, Verdugo Hills District Council, B. S. A.

Are You a Boy? Were You a Boy? Have You a Boy?

In any of these cases you will find great interest in the Boy Scout movement in America. The facts will be presented in these articles from time to time as announced at the bottom of this article.

Boys Will be Boys

But they don't need to be juvenile delinquents. Boys are not naturally inclined to be bad. But they are naturally inclined to be busy. That being busy may take the course of violating the traditions and conventions of their elders unless their elders see to it that the training is in the direction of right, true, manly ideals.

Most juvenile delinquency finds its roots in adult thoughtlessness. The boy wants to be busy, but the older people are too busy to help him.

The tension of the boy and the inattention of the man lead to mistakes on the part of both. The result is unpleasant to both. The public also suffers. The Boy Scout movement is the ounce of prevention that is worth more than the pound of cure.

Boy All Over

The Boy Scout movement is just "boy all over." It takes the original instinct of the boy to be busy and supplies the things to keep him busy. It gives the boy all the liberty compatible with developing true manhood.

It utilizes the things that boys want to do. It is built from the ground up on the conservative basis. Negatives are turned into positives. The boy is shown the "why" of the things he does. Body, mind and soul are exercised in clean, straight living. The boy wants it. There are practically no deserters among boys who once join, if proper leadership is provided to keep them in the movement.

It is American All Over

Scouting is based on the idea of education, which is preeminently an American ideal. It is scientific education, for it begins with what the boys know and goes from that to things they ought to know.

It does things that the schools can't do and that the Sunday schools can't do. And yet the whole force of it is to increase the boy's interest in the things that the schools can do and the things that the Sunday schools are doing.

Boys are "motor-minded." They want action. They don't want to just sit and listen. But they will listen intently if what they hear is related to what they are going to do a little later. That is where Scout teaching ties up with what the schools and Sunday schools want him to think about.

Ever since our Colonial fathers planted the little red school house on the New England hills, it has been our American ideal to provide for our coming generations. The importance of the boy has never loomed larger than it does right now. The need of efficient education and American ideals has never been so thoroughly recognized. We must omit no opportunity for moulding the character of our boys along these lines. The Boy Scout movement is one of the greatest of these opportunities.

(To be continued in next Friday's Glendale Daily Press)

The Glendale Daily Press has frequently indorsed the Boy Scout Movement, congratulated the leaders of it in the Verdugo Hills District on the remarkable development of the work here in the last year, and called the attention of our citizens to the local and national importance of it. The Daily Press desires to see Glendale and the Verdugo Hills District the first city and territory of its size in America in the work of the Boy Scouts. If any citizen has any question to ask it will be answered by the local scout executive, who is preparing these articles. Call for Harold Benner at Glendale 2205-R or address the district office, 108 N. Brand boulevard, Glendale, California.

WORLD PEACE IS DISCUSSED BY THURSDAY CLUB

"World Peace" was chosen as the theme of work for the Thursday Afternoon Club at their first fall meeting held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. L. Bancroft, corner of Laurel and Brand boulevard.

SIDE LIGHTS OF THE BIG GAME

By CARL VICTOR LITTLE
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Lord Louis Mountbatten, cousin of King George and little playmate of the Prnce of Wales, dropped in to see the second game of the baseball derby and heard fandom give Judge Landis "the bird."

His Lordship, with Lady Edwina, who is worth $50,000,000 and looks like $100,000,000, was present when the second game of the series was called a draw and awarded to the A. E. F.

"My word, judge, are they handing you the bird?" asked Mountbatten when fans started to boo the high commissioner of baseball. From this it may be judged that "the bird" is the English translation of "raspberry."

Lord Mountbatten knows baseball. Or at least he knows that the time to stretch is in the seventh inning. The royal fan ate hot dogs, drank pop and consumed ice cream cones. Lady Edwina was an enthusiast for the Yankees. And when the Bambino attempted to steal home, Lady Edwina thrust aside the string of pearls around her neck—they were as big as baseballs—and cheered.

Lord Louis and Lady Edwina like baseball and are sorry they cannot see the whole series.

"But we're on our honeymoon," said the lord, "and we're going inland a bit."

"I got stymied by the crowd," said High Commissioner Landis shortly after 5000 fans booed him from his box to his motor car after the 3-3 tie was called on account of darkness in the 10th inning.

"What are you kicking about?" shouted one of the bleacher inebriates. "You only paid for nine innings and saw ten."

MRS. VISSMAN PASSES AWAY

Succumbs to Heart Failure After Birth of Daughter

A shadow of sorrow was cast, Thursday morning, over the many friends of Mrs. Paul Vissman and over the Glendale Daily Press staff when the news of her death at the Glendale Research hospital became known.

Death came as a result of heart failure at 9:35 o'clock, Mr. Vissman and Mr. and Mrs. William R. Austin, husband and parents of Mrs. Vissman, being at the hsopital when the end came.

Mrs. Vissman was taken to the hospital last Sunday and on Monday submitted to an obstetric operation, during which a beautiful little baby girl made her appearance. Mrs. Vissman rallied remarkably from the ordeal and was well on the way to recovery until on Monday afternoon, when serious symptoms of heart trouble made their appearance. Gradually the patient grew worse and the family was summoned to the bedside. All night Mr. Vissman and Mr. and Mrs. Austin watched over their loved one, but with the arrival of dawn came the report that the patient could not live. At 9:35 o'clock, after the unfortunate lady had made a valiant struggle for life, she passed waay.

Mrs. Anna T. Vissman was 23 years, 9 months and 25 days old at the time of death. She was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Austin of 2625 Yukon avenue, Los Angeles. She was born in Wikensberg, Pa. She was the wife of Paul Vissman, who is head of one of the departments of the Glendale city administration.

Although she was a resident of Glendale but a few months, Mrs. Vissman made a large number of friends here. She was always ready with an encouraging word and her cheerful disposition was a joy to all, both young and old, with whom she came in contact. For several months Mrs. Vissman had charge of the proofreading desk of the Glendale Press. During that time she endeared herself to everyone in the office, where her death is keenly felt.

When the news of Mrs. Vissman's death reached the city hall, expressions of sympathy were many. At the meeting of the city council last night a resolution of condolence was adopted, this expressing to the husband and parents of the deceased extreme sympathy.

Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at 11 o'clock from the family residence at 2625 Yukon avenue, Los Angeles, with interment at Rosedale cemetery. The arrangements are being taken care of by the Pulliam-Kiefer and Eyerick Undertaking company.

GLENDALE COUNCIL BUYS 13 ACRES FOR PARK

At its meeting last night the Glendale city council ordered that 13 acres adjoining the Patterson avenue park be purchased for $10,000, the only "string" to be stated in the deed being that the land shall be used for park purposes only.

When the matter came up before the council J. L. Gray, Alex Mitchell and Mr. Newby spoke in favor of the purchase of the park. The various councilmen outlined their positions in the matter, at the conclusion of which discussion Councilman Stevenson moved that the 13 acres be purchased. This was seconded by Councilman Lapham and the vote was taken, Councilman Davis casting the only negative vote.

In stating his position on the matter Councilman Davis said:

"I hold it would be better to have a 10-acre park rather than a 23-acre field. I'm willing to place all of this money in the improving of the present park."

The land is to be purchased from Elvise G. and Carl Hahn, who are large land owners in that section.

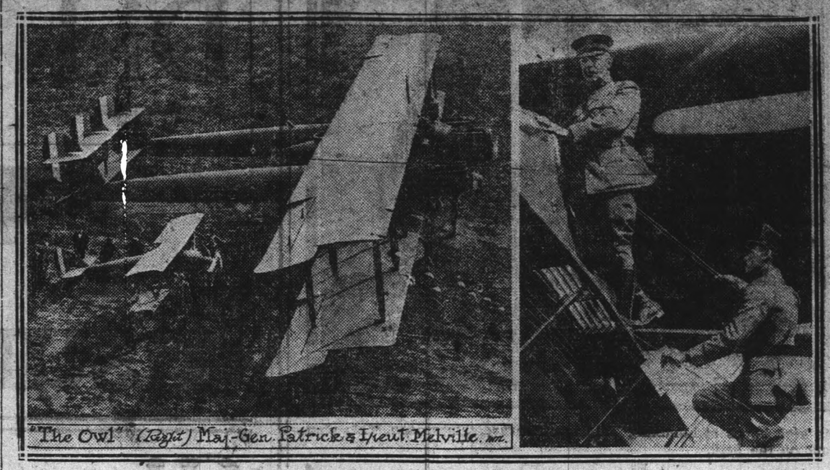
VALENTINO STARS AT T. D. & L. TODAY

Theatergoers who have made a favorite of Rodolph Valentino, the handsome young Italian screen actor who has played with Dorothy Gish, Clara Kimball Young, Dorothy Phillips and is now appearing at the T. D. & L. theater in support of Mae Murray in "The Delicious Little Devil," have probably recognized this dark-eyed young man as the popular dancer who formerly acted as partner for the graceful Joan Sawyer. As Miss Sawyer's teammate Mr. Valentino became a social favorite through the east, appearing in the New York theaters and dancing palaces, and also on a tour of the Keith and Orpheum circuits.

After appearing as a dancer for three years, Mr. Valentino became associated with the musical stock company at the Alcazar theater, San Francisco, from which he graduated to the shadow stage.

This pleasing young actor is a thorough sportsman. He is a member of the Pasadena Polo club, drives a fast motor car and is an enthusiastic aviator. In 1912 he ran second, in a 120-horsepower Fiat, in the race between Naples and Rome, and he spent eight months at Mineola Field, Long Island, conducting aerial experiments for the Italian army.

U. S. HAS WORLD'S LARGEST BOMBING PLANE



Major General Mason Patrick, chief of the army air service, was an interested spectator at Mitchell Field, Long Island, of the tests of the world's largest bombing airplane, "The Owl." The machine is engined by three Liberty motors and has a speed of 106 miles an hour. It can carry two 4000-pound bombs. The Owl is shown alongside the Sperry Messenger, the smallest airship in America.

FIRST PHOTO OF BRITISH TROOPS LEAVING FOR TURKEY

Uxbridge Station and Southampton, England once more took on a warlike aspect when officers and men packed up and left for Turkey to join the British forces already lined up to halt the advance of the Turks. Wives and sweethearts again said goodbye to the "Tommies." About 1000 officers and men of the R. A. F. were the first to leave. Their departure was preceded by a rigid inspection.

ELDER WARREN CONTINUES SERMONS

The usual large audience greeted Elder Warren at the Seventh-day Adventist church, corner Isabel and California, Wednesday night, when he delivered another one of his strong sermons. Taking as his text Isaiah 62-1: "For Zion's will I not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, until righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth,"

"Isaiah, the gospel prophet, was looking forward to our time when there would be a people which would strive to be with Him and to work out the great plan of salvation. God, the father, did not consider the giving of His only Son to die on the Cross too great a gift or sacrifice to purchase our redemption. He did not consider the sending of His Son, heaven's richest gift, to earth, as too great a sacrifice to save even one soul from going out of this life without the hope of gaining heaven.

"We may once taste of the glory of God and then drift out into sin and be lost. We must press forward to the mark, the high calling of the Master, who would not that any should perish, but that all would come unto Him and get forgiveness from sin and walk in the light. Many of us drift from God. I have met many people who have gone back into the world—some who were my good friends in the early days of my life, whose course have given me remorse and pain. I am sorry for them—I have tried to help them; some of them have come back and others would not. In my parting from a one-time friend who had turned back, and to whom I only had time to say a few words, I said: 'Even if I could give up my hope of heaven, I couldn't bear to disappoint my best friend—Jesus.' The loss of even one soul is a calamity, that infinitely outweighs the whole world.

"There are three classes in the world, the sinner who has no hope of heaven and no thought of ever getting there; then there are those who expect to receive the reward, but like the Pharisees will be turned away, because they have been weighed in the balance and found wanting; and the third class will march through the gates into the city of God because they have heeded the Master's voice and followed Him wherever He led them. This latter people are the ones who will hear the welcome plaudit, 'Well done thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful in a few things, I will make thee ruler over many.'

"If we are saved it will be through the shedding of the precious blood of the Savior. One of the thieves, whose life blood was slowly ebbing away, turned to his companion and admitted that both of them were getting their just deserts; but that the Savior was not due the ignominious death of the Cross—the thief was a Jew and he seemed inspired to testify that cruel hands had crucified the Son of God. The other thief reviled the Master, and turning his head to the ground passed out of this life without hope, while the other man looking unto Jesus said, 'Master, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom.' The thief seemed to have caught a glimpse of Jesus, whom with wicked hands they had crucified, was indeed the one who was to redeem Israel. And the Master's heart was glad to know that a soul had been redeemed, and said, "Thou shalt be with me in paradise." Jesus, dying on the cross, furnished us a passport to heaven just as surely as he did that poor man who had recognized that he had at last met the deliverer of Israel."

Elder Warren will preach again this evening, and Friday evening. The public is invited to each of these services.

METROPOLITAN IMPULSE SEEN IN EAGLE ROCK

Modern Laundry and Ice Plant Is Coming to City

There are several factors real estate men are mentioning to prove the metropolitan impulse that seems to have seized Eagle Rock of late. One of these is the newly organized bank that is to be built at Townsend and Colorado. Another is the picture show that is soon to be completed.

The newest assets to be mentioned, which have been officially stated, are assured for Eagle Rock in the near future are a modern laundry and an ice plant. The laundry is planned by a well-known and experienced laundry firm, and the deal is being consummated today. The ice plant is on the calendar to make its appearance shortly. Both of these propositions have been recognized as needs of the city, and both have been assured.

DELANEY OPENS DISCOUNT SALE

Opening with a one day special discount of 10 per cent on all purchases over one dollar, J. J. Delaney will offer to Glendale people a complete line of men's furnishings, starting Saturday. The new haberdashery is at 214 North Brand.

Delaney, who has been manager of the National Shirt Shop in Los Angeles for the past six years, knows his game and brings with him many new and original ideas. His experience in the national concern will stand him in good stead in the new business which he is opening.

A series of tie racks of a new type and the latest and most convenient method of shirt display will facilitate the customer's job of finding what he wants. A very attractive line of caps is another feature of the new shop.

"If it is not right, bring it back and I'll make it right," is the principle under which the new merchant will begin business.

MISSOURI PICKED BY W. S. C.

With a home made receiving set Harold C. Vance, student at the State College of Washington, picked from the air the grand opera concert broadcasted by the St. Louis Post Dispatch the other night. First he caught the announcement of a Salt Lake City station of the hour of the program, with request that any western station getting it wire them.

"Then the concert came in, clear as a bell," says Vance. "It was as distinct as though the singers were in the next room. I also caught Seattle, Portland, Stockton, California, and two Denver stations, as well as one up in Alaska, all in the one evening."

Vance was graduated in June from the electrical engineering department, and his enthusiasm for radio experiment has gained him appointment as laboratory assistant in the college physics department this year.

OBITUARY

George S. Routh

George S. Routh passed away at his home, 324 Honolulu avenue, October 3, at the age of 20 years and 11 days. He had been in California for three months, coming here from Philadelphia.

He is survived by a brother and sister, Jerome Routh and Miss Elizabeth Routh of Los Angeles.

Funeral services will be held sometime Saturday, announcement to be made later. Pulliam, Kiefer & Eyerick in charge.

Rev. Thos. E. Carter

The funeral services for the Rev. Thomas E. Carter, D. D., will be held from the Central avenue Methodist church Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The pastor, V. Hunter Brink, will be assisted by Rev. John W. Southwell, of Pasadena, Rev. E. B. Cole, of Gardena, and Rev. W. B. Collins, D. D., of Glendale. Retired ministers of Glendale will act as the pallbearers.

ST. MARK'S LADIES HOLD MEETING

The ladies of St. Mark's Guild met Thursday afternoon at the Guild hall for their weekly meeting.

The afternoon was spent in quilting, and plans were completed for the church dinner to be given at the church, October 19 at 6:30.

After his strenuous labors in connection with the building of the new Holy Family Catholic church and parish house, Father James O'Neill is to have a rest of a few weeks. The bishop has ordered it and the parish agrees that Father O'Neill has earned it. In order that it may be complete and far enough away to protect him against any calls, he is leaving Saturday noon for Honolulu from Los Angeles harbor on the steamship City of Los Angeles. The trip will consume about a month and he will have a little more than a week in Honolulu. In his absnce Father Stephen Cain, formerly of Hollywood, will be in charge of the parish.

The parents and friends of Pacific avenue school are invited to attend the "Teachers' Welcome" Friday evening, Oct. 6, in the boys' gymnasium of the high school.

H. G. Bartlett of Los Angeles is a patient at the Glendale hospital and sanitarium, having undergone a major operation Wednesday morning.

ONE FOOT MEANS A LADY SAYS DAME STYLE

Twelve Inches Makes a Big Difference to Arbiter

By HEDDA HOYT
(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (United Press).—Three feet make a yard. And one foot—added to the length of last season's gown—makes a lady. Or so the girls of the fall of 1922 would have us believe.

The long gown is making a vast change in the manners and perhaps in the morals of the American women. In short skirts every woman was a kittenish young thing, whose age was fathomless. Her unhampered limbs were always hurrying in long strides, her bobbed tresses flying in the breeze and her short skirts flying around her knees.

Today a girl rushes into a fashionable shop looking like a hosiery advertisement with her extremely short frock and silken calves and emerges a long-skirted, tightly draped, demure young person with slow, mincing steps and with dignity simply radiating from her being.

The introduction of the long skirt into the fashion world has produced the same effect as will the pressure of the reverse gear on an automobile. It has completely reversed the entire order of the feminine world. Childish abandon is replaced by dignity.

A generous display of the nether limb is regarded as quite indecent.

Bobbed hair gives way to long, straight tresses shaped in artistic chignons. Even the little plucked eyebrows must react to the rule of the skirt. That sparse little line of hair is again allowed to grow into a highly arched, touch-me-not-I'm-a-lady sort of line.

And our modern dances even suffer a change. How on earth can one do those funny little foot exercises that are required for the Camel Walk and the Chicago in an ankle binding gown?

Of what use are little trick steps when the skirts are so long that no one can see them? They are doing the slow Argentine about New York, a dance which requires artistic swaying of the torso rather than foot gymnastics.

Of course, women whose names appear upon the social register are taking to long skirts like fish do to water. Their years of training in the ways of grace and carriage have fitted them perfectly for the manipulation of the long gowns.

It's the average, everyday girl, who is going to have a difficult time living up to the new gown. She is liable to feel about as much at ease in them as a small boy does in his first long trousers. She will often forget and slip into the flapper stride or attempt to cram her hands into her coat pockets. Or worse yet, she may say, "How do you git that way," instead of "I cawn't interpret you." It's rather hard for all of us to be ladies.

GIVES CHEERING NEWS

"The state fruit crop is very good," says Prof. O. M. Morris, head of the horticulture department of the State College of Washington, just back from an inspection tour.

"Fruit is coloring very rapidly and is generally of good size and quality. I am just back from the Wenatschee district, where I attended the annual Orchard Day excursion and spoke on the necessity of removing filler trees in orchards, before they get to crowding.

"I also judged the fruit at the fair at Spokane and would like to make a vigorous protest against the prejudice against letting exhibitors see the judging. All fruit exhibitors should be present that they may be told the reasons for the placings by the judges. The exhibits are not of what they grow but of what they select for exhibition. They lose all the educational value of the experience if they are not given a chance to learn why one exhibit is judged better than another. All the fairs in the northwest are on the wrong track on that matter."

Speaking of the four days he spent in the experimental orchards of the district, assisting Roy Larsen, head of the Chelan County Soils Bureau, with the cover crop experiments, he said:

"The plats all look very good. We have practically finished the experimentation on orchard fertilizers and the results will be ready for publication some time during the winter."

Article No. 2
Choice of Suit in Bidding
Card Probabilities

CHOICE OF SUIT IN BIDDING

As it takes five tricks at Clubs or Diamonds for game, these suits are designated minor suits and the Heart and Spade suits, requiring only four tricks for game, major suits. It is the experience of the best players that it is almost an axiom of the game that the limit of the great majority of hands played at a suit bid is four tricks so that the Heart and Spade suits are much preferable. The No Trump requires only three tricks for game and therefore should be preferable to the major suits. It has been noted, however, that it is safer on the average to play for four tricks at Hearts or Spades, than three tricks at No Trump, so that the major suits are preferred even over the No Trump.

This division into major and minor suits, and the preference of major to minor or even to No Trump has made the Spade suit the most valuable suit because its holder can outbid any other suit, with a better chance for game. This result has given rise to the so-called Spade convention as an important part of the double, which will be covered in subsequent articles.

The next things for the beginner to take up are card probabilities and card valuation: that is, what you may reasonably expect from your own and the other players' hands on an average deal, and how to judge the trick-taking value of the cards that are dealt to you.

CARD PROBABILITIES

When a deck of fifty-two cards is dealt out to four players, one at a time, it has been found that about eighty per cent of these hands will contain suits of not more than five cards. That means that four out of every five hands are of this character and therefore represent the type of hands that must be considered first by the novice. For example take the following hand:

Hearts — A, K, 7, 6, 5
Clubs — 10, 9, 8
Diamonds — 10, 7, 6
Spades — J, 4

This hand is a good example of a hand containing a five card suit. The probability as to division of the eight remaining cards of the Heart suit is that they will be divided three to one player, three to another and two to the third. In other words, by leading the A, K and small Heart, the bidder of the Heart suit will make four tricks with that suit. If such is correct, that leaves nine tricks to be taken by the other three suits. If these nine tricks are equally divided among the three players, each one should on the average win three each. This probability is called the "average expectancy" and forms the basis of the first bid of the hand.

With the hand already noted, dealer is justified in bidding one Heart, for it will average to produce four tricks, which, added to the three he can expect on the average from his partner, will just produce the seven tricks necessary to justify a bid of one Heart. This point will be covered more at length in dealing with the opening or so-called "original" bid of any hand. These various probabilities — first, that four out of every five hands contain suits no longer than five cards; second, that a five card suit headed by A, K will be divided 5, 3, 3, 2 and be worth four tricks if that suit is trump; and third, that the average number of tricks that may be expected from partner is three (the so-called average expectancy) — constitute the so-called "card probabilities." These are most important and most necessary for every novice to understand.

Card Valuation will be taken up in the next article.

The Favorite Recipe of a Famous Singer

MISS FLORENCE MACBETH DECLARES THAT MACAROONS ARE HER FAVORITE FOOD

She didn't say whether she nibbles at them while she studies her lines, but she did admit that she is dreadfully fond of them. "You just don't notice how many you're eating when you make them my way," she said.

This is her way, as she tells it.

"Here are the ingredients — would you think that such deliciousness would come of it? Two egg yolks, hard-cooked; 1-2 cupful of vegetable fat, 1-2 teaspoonful salt, 1-2 cupful sugar, 1-2 cupful blanched almonds, greated rind 1 lemon, 1-4 teaspoonful cinnamon, 1 2-3 cupfuls wheat flour. You'll need, too, 1 egg white, and 1 tablespoonful granulated sugar.

"I drop the egg yolks into boiling water and keep the water hot, but not boiling, till the yolks are firm throughout. I cream the vegetable fat; and add the yolks, pressed through a sieve, and beat it in thoroughly. Then I gradually beat in the sugar, the almonds, and the spices mixed and sifted with the flour. I break the dough into pieces the size of a hickory nut, and roll the dough into balls in the hands. These I press on a baking pan which has been greased with the vegetable fat, into flat rounds and size and shape of a macaroon. Each one of these I brush over with slightly beaten egg whites, and dredge with sugar, baking to an amber shade. This recipe should make about 30 macaroons. You'd better count them fore you put them in the open, because I don't guarantee the number you'll leave after they are taken out, crisp and just delicious!"

HERE'S A DANDY HOLIDAY TRIP

Palmer Canyon Is Something New; Its Beauties Are Now Available

If you are looking for an entirely new retreat for the Sunday or holiday trip, why not turn your attention to Palmer canyon? It is located within 40 miles from Los Angeles and is one of the almost unexplored to be found in this section.

Leaving Los Angeles over the Foothill boulevard, the party travels in the fresh morning air as far as Claremont, a distance of 36 miles, where a turn was made to the north toward the San Gabriel mountains, with Palmer canyon as the immediate objective. A paved lateral three miles long that ascends gradually through new orange groves takes the motorist to the mouth of this canyon. From there a winding dirt road ascends the canyon for a distance of about half a mile and comes to an end in a veritable forest and at an altitude of about 2700 feet.

For a distance of about two miles this rift in the San Gabriels is thickly and beautifully wooded with giant oaks, alders, sycamores, poplars and pines. Holly, ferns and countless varieties of shrubs cover the hillsides. Through the canyon, its course broken by picturesque falls and many granite check dams, is an ever running mountain stream.

Until very recently this canyon, which is private property, has been devoid of any habitation. Its owners have subdivided the beautiful spot with its almost semi-tropical growth of verdure, and now mountain cabins are coming into being in the glades and on the mountain sides. Well defined trails wind among the trees and shrubbery, and so dense are the tree tops that at noon the sun only reaches the ground in splotches.

Located in the Angeles forest reserve, it is necessary for one intending to go there and camp to secure a fire permit. As a matter of convenience it is better to do this before leaving the city. One of the most picturesque canyons within easy reach of Los Angeles, this canyon will unquestionably become popular with lovers of nature.

TANNING IS ART SAYS GOATHERD

Tanning with the hair on a pelt is something of an art. In reply to an inquiry from a breeder of Swiss goats at Auburn, the State College of Washington has passed on the following information from the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey:

"As a rule the first step in skinning is to make a long cut on the under side from chin to tip of tail, and from each foot along the inner side of the leg, except beaver pelts which are sent to the market flat, and are slit across beneath the tail from heel to heel and the skin reversed as the body is withdrawn. The tail and the base of the ears should be skinned out

"Fresh skins should be divested of loose fat and muscle and then either tanned at once or cured so as to be kept without deterioration until a convenient time for tanning. They are cured by stretching free of wrinkles, flesh side exposed, and left in a cool, shady airy place. In moist atmospheres, or where haste is imperative, the flesh side may be covered with a layer of salt and the skin folded, hair side out, into a compact bundle, which should be opened and refolded two or three times during the first two days to insure salt action on every part. Flat skins may be stretched by pinning them out on the floor or frame, but in any case there should always be a circulation of air on both sides.

"Pelts of fur animals are dried, flesh side out, after being drawn over pieces of board shaped so as to stretch them uniformly. Mole skins, as an exception, are pinned out flat to dry, like beaver hides. Wolf, fox, lynx, and wild cat pelts are taken from the boards and turned fur side out before they are fully dried. Other kinds of pelts go to market flesh side out.

"Skins may be tanned with or without the hair on, as desired. Hair can be removed from hides by soaking them in tepid water, made alkaline by lye or lime, until the hair comes out readily. Before these are put through the tanning process they should be washed to free them of the alkaline solution.

"The following recipe for a tanning liquor is in common use: To each gallon of water add one quart of salt and half an ounce of sulphuric acid. Do not keep this mixture in a metal container. Thin skins may remain in it indefinitely without injury. When removed they are washed several times in soapy water, wrung as dry as possible, and rubbed on the flesh side with a cake of hard soap. They are then folded in the middle, lengthwise over a line, hair side out and left to dry.

"When both surfaces are barely dry and the interior is still moist, they are laid over a smooth rounded board and scraped on the flesh side with a worn flat file, or a similar blunt edged tool. In this way any inner layer of fat is removed, and twisted until quite dry. If parts of the skin are still hard and stiff, the soaping, drying, and stretching process is repeated until the entire skin is soft. Fresh butter or other animal fat worked into skins while warm and then worked out again in dry hardwood sawdust or extracted by a hasty bath in gasoline, increases their softness."

THE PROTECTING OF THE WELLS

"The safety of a well depends on the purity of the water at its source, and on the protection of the well itself from surface pollution," says M. K. Snyder, municipal and sanitary engineer, in the new bulletin on "Well and Spring Protection," just issued in the engineering experiment station series at the Washington State College.

"Polluting matter enters a well in a variety of ways: direct percolation from barnyards, cesspools, privies, and slop holes; percolation from nearby pools at watering troughs; direct contamination from matter dropping from the feet of persons or animals passing over the open cover of the well; direct contamination from entrance of surface wash through holes in the casing at or near the surface of the ground; entrance of frogs, snakes, or rodents through these same holes. All these and more must be guarded against.

"Wells should be protected from contamination both above ground and below. They should be tightly cased beneath the surface with iron or brick, stone or tile, set in Portland cement mortar to a depth of not less than ten feet. Should a water bed giving a sufficient flow be encountered at a greater depth than this, the well should be tightly cased down to this bed.

"If the well is of the dug type, the opening between the brick, stone, or tile casing and the sides of the excavation should be carefully filled with puddled earth as the casing is being put in, so as to shut off all chance of surface water entering the well. The driven well, in the process of sinking, is tightly cased for its entire depth. The drilled well should be cased tightly for some feet into the rock, the casing being made to fit the rock bore as tightly as possible.

"The open type of well is especially liable to contamination from the top, because of its large opening, and because of carelessness in covering this opening."

The bulletin, which is No. 9 of the series, may be secured free by request at the college.

CITY PRINTING

NOTICE OF PUBLIC WORKS

Public notice is hereby given that the Council of the City of Glendale on the 2nd day of October, 1922, did at its meeting on said day, adopt a Resolution of Intention, No. 1701, to order the following improvement to be made on a portion of that alley lying between San Fernando Road and Concord Street from Salem Street, North, in the City of Glendale.

That the public interest and convenience require and it is the intention of the Council of the City of Glendale to close up, vacate, and abandon for Street and alley purposes a portion of that certain twenty (20) foot ALLEY lying between San Fernando Road and Concord Street from Salem Street to the north line of Tract No. 4531, as per map recorded in Book 52, Page 18 of Maps Records of Los Angeles County, California, and more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at the northeasterly corner of Lot 76 of said Tract No. 4531 thence easterly along the northerly line of said Tract No. 4531 to the northwesterly corner of Lot 77 of said Tract No. 4531; thence southerly along the westerly line of said Lot 77 to the southwesterly corner thereof; thence westerly along the westerly prolongation of the southerly line of said Lot 77 to the easterly line of Lot 75 of said Tract No. 4531; thence northerly along the easterly lines of Lot 75 and 76 of said Tract No. 4531, to the point of beginning.

The district to be assessed to pay the damages, costs, and expenses for said improvement is described in and reference is hereby made to Resolution of intention No. 1701, for further particulars of said work.

B. F. DUPUY.
Street Superintendent of the City of Glendale.

COLLEGE DAIRY HERD

Chinook Cavalier Karton, a senior bull calf, bred by the State College of Washington, won first in his class at the Spokane Interstate Fair, was made Junior Champion, and finally won the Grand Championship for Ayrshire bulls of any age.

Other entries from the college made favorable records in the show ring. Chinook Cavalier Elsie took third in the Senior Ayrshire Heifer calf class. Competition among Jerseys was strong, the college herds being opposed by four large herds and representatives of many smaller ones. In a class of 15 Junior Yearling Heifers, Waikiki's Pilot Mary from the college won first place and was afterwards made Junior Champion Jersey female.

It was also one of the greatest Holstein shows ever assembled at Spokane and the college brought home second in the 2-year-old cow class, third in the senior yearling class and third in the junior heifer class. In the bull classes, fourth in the senior bull and second in the junior bull class went to college animals.

"The showing was especially gratifying," says Prof. E. V. Ellington, head of the dairy division, "because the entries we sent were all young animals, only one being over 2 years old. And with one exception all this young stock was bred and grown at the college."

THE COME BACK

Sister—Now, Eddie, nice people always choose the smaller of two chocolates, so take your choice.

Eddie—Thanks, sis. But ladies always choose first.

ITCHING ECZEMA DRIED RIGHT UP WITH SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any druggist and use it like a cold cream.—Adv.

Don't Be Fooled

"FOOL me once," says the proverb, "and it's shame on you. Fool me twice and it's shame on me."

Don't be fooled when it comes to spending your money. Patronize the merchants who have a reputation for fair dealing and honesty. Such motives must actuate the consistent advertiser. The man who invests real money in building a reputation for himself and his merchandise cannot afford to risk any of it by taking unfair advantage of his patrons.

The consistent advertiser pays money to tell you about his goods. He knows they are good—he backs them with his money because he believes they will satisfy. Only merchandise which is consistently good can be consistently advertised.

So advertising protects you against fraud and inferiority. It tells you what is new and good, making you a wise buyer. It saves you money by pointing out for your consideration only the best products and the best places to buy them.

Thrifty men and women read the advertisements. To them it is a plain everyday business proposition—a duty they owe to themselves and to their pocketbooks.

Don't be fooled.

Don't spend your money blindly

THE FAKE MAHATMA or THE BRAMAC BRIDE

By HIRAM A. GRAVES
Glendale

I have long been interested in the Occult and although forty years and more of study of this most engrossing and enlightening subject has convinced me that I have but touched upon the merest A-B-C of the matter. I have met many, who, after a few months of research have set themselves up as "teachers" and "leaders" of cults. The recent exposure of such a faker is still an item of interest in the local papers and so I am impelled, as it were, to reveal a story of many years ago, which may be of interest and which may throw some little light upon the tricks and frauds practiced by such people as have, today, an immense fallowing among men and women, who ought to have better sense; persons who in ordinary dealings are as shrewd and farseeing as the average, but who seem prone to follow the leadership of any fraudulent faker who appears upon the scene. The reason for this is, as is well understood by true students of the mysterious (which becomes no longer a mystery when properly understood) that humanity today is really seeking the "higher and better" life, in spite of many reputed backslidings from the various creeds; and that earnest souls should be exposed to the dastardly machinations of these parasitic swindlers seems a shameful proof of laxity on the part of those in authority.

My story dates back a number of years and for obvious reasons I shall not mention the name of the city where it was my good fortune to be called in to aid in the exposure of the many fraudulent mediums, astrologers and others who were bringing odium upon the really sincere and honest people who look upon such things as matters of religious belief; none of whom should be classed in the category of the kind of people to which the subject of my expose belonged.

I had met, on a number of occasions, a young man of excellent family, whose mother had passed to the spirit realms when he was an infant. His father was a wealthy man and a well established merchant; a firm believer in Spiritualism, and he had frequently mentioned having had the joy of conversing with his deceased wife's spirit at meetings held by a personage known as "Zylo the Mahatma."

I do not wish to be understood to claim that there are not genuine spirit manifestations, no conscientious mediums or "sensitives" as they are sometimes known, for my experience has proven that there are many things possible and provable even outside the realms of hard-headed, cold-blooded science. However, my statement will not be disputed by any honest occultist when I state that all such as use their psychic powers for illegal purposes, or who "fake" powers that they do not possess, cannot be too severely dealt with by the law.

The old gentleman referred to had been deluded into the belief that his departed spouse was about to "reincarnate" and take possession of a fresh and youthful material body; that, in fact, of a handsome and sprightly young woman known as "Effie," whom he had become acquainted with at the aforesaid "Zylo's" sceances, where he was told that his wife had become tired of her lonesome life in the spirit world and desired to be again taken to his bosom; the "work" to be consummated by Zylo, of course, for a good sized material consideration from the prospective and highly elated "groom." Said "groom" had already, I was informed, enriched the professor's coffers by many good specimens of the "coin of the realm." His son, becoming very much disturbed by the latest idiosyncracy of his father, whom he revered and loved with a very high degree of affection, came to me in his distress and requested that I gather my intuitive wits in an endeavor to outwit the faker (as he had become convinced he was—and as I already had become positive was a fact) and save his father and the family from chagrin and probable complications in case of the demise of the old gentleman, who was all of 70 years at that time.

Zylo was a great advertiser and paid large sums for column length articles regarding his wonderful powers of healing, psychometry, astrological predictions and so forth, and pretended to teach these intricate systems for so much per; which gave me the needed entree into his "mystic circles" as a student; and provided with the necessary money for fees and extras (with a very pronounced accent on the extras) I enrolled in the "College of Psychic and Occult Sciences," presided over by the celebrated Zylo.

My first visit was made as a humble seeker for "light—more light" and I was received by an ebony hued attendant, garbed in supposedly Oriental apparel and ushered into the ante room, where I afterwards learned I, like all other aspirants, became the object of an intensive scrutiny by Zylo himself, seated in an adjoining room and able to fully visualize everything in the waiting room by means of a very ingenious system of mirrors, which enabled him to take such observations without detection and which apparatus was not discernable by the "victim."

The little, Negro eyed me sharply and I seemed strangely familiar with his dusky features as he salaamed thrice and escorted me into a dimly lighted parlor draped with oriental fittings and thickly carpeted. After some little time the Professor being at the time "engaged" as the attendant stated to me (engaged as I afterwards learned, in carefully sizing me up) I was greeted by the entrance of a very prepossessing personage in a royal purple robe, edged with lace upon neck, sleeves and bottom of his flowing garment. He was some 35 years of age, clean shaven, and his smooth, dark tresses were surmounted by a triangular beretta; and in his hands, reverently folded across his ample bosom, he bore a large silver crucifix, which he solemnly kissed and then laid it upon an open Bible, which adorned a central stand or table, heavily draped in black, resembling a small altar. This accomplished, he turned to me and extended his hands over my head, muttering some unintelligible gibberish intended for Latin, Greek or Hebrew or some other dead language (it was so dead I could not resurrect it afterwards) and then, in a deep and impressive manner he remarked, "Well, my son, what may the astral powers do for your welfare?"

"Sir," I replied, "I am interested in occultism and would like to enroll with you as a student, if you find me worthy." Gazing intently at me, then allowing his eyes to wander over my person, he was apparently satisfied with the outward evidences of my monetary qualifications, for I wore a handsome diamond stick pin and a ring which scintillated wonderfully in the reflected lightof his high hung and decorative electric fixtures. No danger of refusal, for his eyes glittered with satisfaction as he noted my appearance of wealth. He did not know and his occult powers did not inform him that these adornments had been borrowed for the occasion from my client. Our arrangements were soon completed, a stipulated advance fee paid, another solemn blessing bestowed and I was directed to return at an early date to commence my tuition, which I was assured would require no preliminary knowledge whatever in the magical arts.

It has been my invariable custom, through long experience, to closely observe my surroundings and to note anything unusual under similar circumstances, so I was not at all astonished to discover that the little darkey who had so obsequiously received me at the door on my arrival was shadowing me from the place of mystery; but when I suddenly turned a sharp corner and dodged into a dark doorway, he passed me, probably puzzled at my disappearance in such an unlooked for manner. Nor was it at all astonishing to learn from the good people with whom I had temporarily taken up my abode, and who knew neither my correct name nor my occupation, that I had been investigated by a stranger, who even followed me to my purported "office" in the place of business of a friend downtown; once a detective, but now "reformed" and established in the real estate business.

The diminutive Negro bore the name, I learned afterwards, of Ira, a Hebrew appellation signifying "watchful" and he fully lived up to his cognomen. Another worthy with whom I soon became acquainted was a tall, scrawny, awkward youth who rejoiced in the name of Gall, this individual acting as "investigator" for Zylo as well as curtain raiser and man of general utility during his numerous mystic ceremonies. Well, having had considerable experience in occultism, spiritualism and kindred studies, although I was careful to conceal this knowledge from Zylo and his crew, I became rapidly proficient under his tuition and, as I had anticipated, he soon broached the subject to me of becoming one of his "disciples," to which suggestion, after the proper amount of hesitation and haggling, I finally consented and thereafter I was in his confidence and no further pretense of deception, as far as I was concerned, was attempted by any of them. It was then that I became acquainted with Effie, the supposed wife of Zylo, who was a full participant in the scheme to defraud the elderly merchant. Ira, I found, had been employed as a porter by the Pullman Car Company, and it was in that capacity that I had formerly encountered him while on my numerous travels, but fortunately for me he failed to recall me until after the denoument of this little drama. I found that Zylo owed him several weeks' pay and that he was getting somewhat anxious regarding the possibility of payment, so I wheedled him into accepting a substantial retainer from myself, whereupon he explained to me privately all he knew regarding the nefarious business of his master, the details of which are obviously improper of revealment here.

To hasten to my conclusion, I will say that the evening for the "betrothal" of the poor old dupe to his reincarnated former mate arrived. The golden (plated) censer swung odorously over the altar, bedecked with flowers for the ceremony; the large sliding doors between the two old-fashioned parlors were widely opened, admitting of more space and less fear of detection by skeptics or meddlers. The guests were seated in the front parlor and the "manifestations" were to take place in the rear room, which was festooned and draped in a highly ornate manner for the occasion, allowing for numerous contraptions which they successfully concealed from sight, but which were very necessary to the success of the scheme whereby the treasure chest of the old merchant was to be considerably depleted by Zylo and the "Spirit Bride."

My young client, I observed through a handy peep-hole in one of the hangings back of the altar, was seated between his father and a stranger whom I knew beforehand to be a former classmate of the young collegian, athletic in build and determined in demeanor and whom I knew was the one who would enact a prominent, though unanticipated, part in the coming events of the evening.

A small organ, manipulated by Gall, behind the draperies, wheezed out a squeaky but not entirely unmusical prelude as Zylo, holding as usual his great cricifix, elaborately begowned and with a sanctimonious air, advanced through the parted curtains and took his stand before the audience, consisting of a number of adherents who had been specially invited to witness the ceremonies, but upon the further side of the altar, upon which he deposited his holy emblem. After a short chant, in unintelligible gibberish, Zylo cleared his throat and addressed the assemblage as follows: "My dearly beloved friends, after the solemn ceremonies of this evening are concluded a period of seven days must elapse, during which our esteemed brother must consummate an entire change in mind and body, becoming rejuvenated." (This was before the discovery of the merits (?) of monkey glands, so there could have been no suspicion of such treatment of the aged subject.) Zylo continued: "With our beloved spirit sister it is much more difficult, for she will be compelled, through the assistance of the angelic and divine beings whom we invoke, to replace all the atomic particles of her present ethereal being, for those of her earthly sister. Effie, who has devoutly and affectionately offered her dense material body, purified by fire and fasting (I almost laughed aloud as I recalled the hearty meal she had just finished) for the embodiment of the pure spirit who is to return to the embrace of her former beloved husband, in order to raise him with her to the higher life."

Raising his right arm high above his head, the crucifix grasped in his hand, the master uttered another string of cabalistic words; a gong sounded solemnly from behind the draperies, struck with a rubber hammer by yours truly; Ira extinguished the lights by means of switches in the rear hall and the whole place was plunged into a stygian gloom; for every crack and cranny had been curtained to prevent admittal of the least light. Zylo resumed his chant, his voice gradually rising to a high falsetto, as obove his head there appeared to the astonished audience, a hand and arm extended as if in benediction, then slowly disappeared, first the fingers, then the whole hand and finally the entire arm. I will later on explain this phenomena, as well as others which were equally as astounding at the time, except to those of us who were behind the scenes and manipulated the apparatus whereby they were accomplished. The chant continued, now accompanied by the organ, played very softly, as from the floor there arose a vapory, luminous object which wavered and swung to and fro in increasing volume, finally assuming the stature and form of a human being, draped from head to foot in a wonderfully beautiful robe of silvery white. Effie had materialized.

"When you go hence, dearly beloved brother," continued Zylo, after finishing his chant with a solemn amen, "you will repair to your mountain retreat (he knew that the merchant maintained a hunting lodge some distance from the city) there to commune with the higher powers as directed, refraining from all mundane communication until your period of purification is completed, in seven days, brother, in seven days. You will then present yourself once more before this sacred shrine and receive the reward of your long and faithful vigil."

"Our brother," he continued, "a child of Leo, has his destiny from the tribe of Joseph; his nature springs from a deep soul love; he lives in an ideal world; and this sister, child of the April month, daughter of Aries, is attracted to this son of Leo by polar attraction and will be to him, in the personality of his former soul mate and life companion, a comfort in his declining years. May the blessings of the gods be upon this spiritual union."

Again I struck the brazen gong and the luminous form of Effie extended her vapory arms towards the now greatly agitated old man, who arose, as Zylo commanded, "Arise, brother, and advance and deliver the sacred contract to your spirit bride; she will dematerialize it and return it again in seven days, increased an hundred fold as the dowry of your heaven-born, reincarnated love.

This meant that the victim was to hand to Effie an envelope containing a supposed marriage contract, prepared by Zylo and signed by the merchant, also enclosing crisp bank bills to the amount of $10,000, which were to be "spiritually increased" as alluded to and returned as "The Spirit Dowry." My client, I may state in passing, had vigorously objected to this part of the game until I assured him that I would contrive to capture it before Zylo got his greedy hands on it; for the whole bunch intended to "dematerialize" by the first train out of town after the ceremony, I agreeing to go with them to repeat the paying game elsewhere.

The bridegroom obeyed, Effie dematerializing it by dropping it beneath her luminous robe to the floor, where it would be subsequently recovered by Zylo after the spirit had dissolved back into its ethereal and invisible state. This was accomplished by arising in the first place from a capacious black bag, which entirely enveloped her form as she squatted low and thus wormed her way in from behind the curtains after the extinguishing of the lights, again lowering herself to the floor and drawing the bag over her form as she slowly stooped. Ira, denuded and thus invisible, had crawled forward at my command and lay prone behind the bride, and reaching her feet, undetected by her, he grasped the package as it fell, brought it to me, then quickly resuming his apparel he slipped through the rear door, leaving it open behind him. As soon as I found the "dowry" in my hands, I suddenly struck the gong two vigorous blows with a hammer, as had been agreed upon between my client and myself, and things rapidly developed in that "Temple of Hermes" as it was called.

There was a sound as of a hissing serpent, a loud shriek from Effie, a muttered curse on the part of Zylo, who shouted, "Turn on the lights, damn you," which command I immediately complied with as the astonished and now shouting audience beheld the form of the weeping, pleading Effie, still enveloped in her radiant garments, her feet entangled in the bag, dragged forward by means of a stout cowboy's lariat, skillfully manipulated by the classmate of my young friend. The game was up. The son grasped his father's arm, raised the cry of "police" and dragged the astonished old gentleman into the street, as the now infuriated Mahatma, swung into the frightened, pushing and struggling crowd, in an endeavor to reach the athletic cowboy, who dropped the fainting Effie into a nearby chair, landed a neat uppercut on Zylo's chin, felling him, then joining in the general rush to the door, dragging his writhing lariat after ihm.

Zylo the Mahatma was now a raging, cursing fury; he stamped about, cursed the weeping woman, seized the innocent crucifix from the altar, where he had laid it, dashed it to the carpet and stamped on it in impotent wrath, hurling at it and at everyone within hearing a string of most frightful imprecations. He hastily searched the robes of the fainting Effie, for the envelope, which now safely reposed in my inner vest pocket, and failing in his search, he turned at us and shouted, "D—n their souls, someone got wise; get out of here all of you. Wake up, you damn fool (this to Effie) get ready to skidoo; we are done in this infernal town right now." And tearing off his robes, he gathered up such paraphernalia as he could and rammed the junk into one of the still open trunks, already packed and standing in the hallway behind a drawn curtain which concealed them from the front room and before he could possibly accuse me of complicity in his downfall I slipped out of the open door, left for me thus by Ira, caught a passing taxi, which had been commandeered by that dusky worthy, and soon restored the treasure to the now thoroughly disillusionized old merchant, to whom his son had explained the whole nasty plot, and as they desired no publicity, they allowed the matter to drop after reimbursing me for my expenditures and bestowing upon me a liberal fee. An installment plan firm took back the unpaid for furnishings of the Hermetic Temple, plus some mysterious extras which had been dropped in the flight of the former occupants of the flat, and the incident was closed.

The mysterious spirit arm which "blessed" the unctuous Mahatma was that of Gall, having been prepared with phosphorescent paint, as the man himself, enveloped in black and with a black sock drawn over his bared arm, slowly withdrew the covering therefrom and pulled it back again after the demonstration. Effie's garments were similarly prepared. It is not at all a difficult trick and explains many of the so-called materializations of pseudo spiritualists.

How, you ask, can I recall the words of the ceremony so accurately; well, that is the easiest part of the whole thing. I wrote them for the old rascal.

Sir Thomas Lipton

Although he is seventy-four years old, Sir Thomas Lipton, on his arrival in New York on a business trip, indicated that he would challenge again in 1924 for a race for the America's Cup and expressed confidence that his Shamrock V. would inally lift the coveted trophy.

GIRLHOOD'S VARIABLE MOODS

She said she did not love me any more
But since I'm working in the candy store
And take my wages part in trade she said
She could not see why we're not friends instead
Of acting to each other just as though
We'd never even met at all you know.
And she said it is wicked to pass by
Each other as we do and maybe I
Could win her back again now that I've shown
I'm able to support her all alone.

She said she could not bear to see me go
About all through vacation time as though
I had no get-up in me which is why
She would not go with me, but now if I
Can keep my job a while she'll wait and see
If maybe I have got good stuff in me.
And then she asked me if it's really true
I'm sick of chocolate creams and what they do
With gum-drops when they're old and how it seems
When you are really sick of chocolate creams.

Sometimes she makes me wonder if I worked
In the steam laundry or I only clerked
In Jones' lumber yard would she give me
Another chance as she does now to see
What I am made of, or would she be glad
She's rid of me and say the little lad
Who used to go with her has gone to work
And she could never bear a common clerk
To wait on her? O women, you are grand,
But you are awful, awful hard to understand!

TANNING WITH FARRELL

Intersectional Contests Tomorrow

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Six good intersectional games will brighten up tomorrow's football schedule, the first real week of the new season.

Three southern teams come north to engage three of the eastern leaders.

North Carolina meets Yale at New Haven; Virginia plays Princeton at Princeton and the University of the South opposes Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

The University of Kansas, one of the leaders of the Missouri Valley conference, journeys to the plains of West Point to meet Uncle Sam's Cadets and the midshipmen at Ananpolis will have an intersectional combat with Western Reserve from Ohio.

In the middle-west the big intersectional game will be played between Notre Dame and St. Louis University.

* * * * * *

Tomorrow also provides the debut for football in the Western conference. All of the games, however, are hardly more than workouts.

* * * * * *

Fight followers of good judgment can't find words good enough to fit Pancho Villa, the little Filipino, who recently won the American flyweight championship from Johnny Buff. The youngster seems to have everything that becomes a champion and if he gets a bout with Jimmy Wilde there is little doubt that he will win the world's title.

Villa has a heart that is not awed by a champion and he is also a shrewd little ring man. When he met Buff for the title he was first in the ring and instead of avoiding the glances of the champion he walked over and helped him through the ropes when he entered the ring.

He also works the trick of taking an opponent by the arm and leading him to his corner, as if he were in distress when he had not damaged him at all.

* * * * * *

As a rule, a champion tries to get the goat of an opponent by trying to look him down when they get into the ring or by making some slighting remark when the referee is giving them instructions.

Tut Jackson tried to bluff Harry Wills when the referee was telling them how they wanted to fight.

"Shall I go back to my corner when he's down?" Jackson asked.

Wills laughed out loud.

In the old days it was considered wise strategy for a fighter to go into his opponent's dressing room and taunt him with an offer to fight it out there before they entered the ring.

* * * * * *

Jack Dempsey is a notable exception to the rule. He never has a thing to say before he enters the ring or while he is fighting. He doesn't even look at his opponent or try to pull any stage effects at posing confidence.

He never took his eyes off the floor before his fight started with Willard and his actions in the corner before the Carpentier fight would have led a casual observer to believe that the showy Frenchman was the champion.

In Jersey City, Dempsey sat humped over on his stool, fiddling with his fingers. Not only did he refuse to look at Carpentier, or gaze around at the crowd, but he didn't even raise his head when Descamps, trying to get his goat, insisted upon making him wrap his hands two or three times.

This photograph of the Turkish Nationalist military chief has just been received in this country. His successful operations in the Near East have disturbed the plans and policies of the Powers and several of the smaller nations.

GALAXY OF BURBANK MUSICAL ARTISTS THRILL LARGE CROWD AT METHODIST JUBILEE CONCERT

Musical Program Given at New Church Last Wednesday Night Was One of the Best Ever Staged in the San Fernando Valley; All Numbers Good

TONIGHT IS BOOKED AS "EDUCATION NIGHT"

Members of School Board, Teachers, Pupils, Sunday School Workers and Other Folks Will Be Special Guests at New Burbank Church Tonight

Without a doubt one of the best musical programs ever given in the San Fernando valley, a galaxy of Burbank musical artists rendered a splendid "Jubilee Concert" Wednesday night at the new First Methodist church, the concert being one of the super-features of the elaborate program being held this week at the church.

Renowned as a pianist, Charles Leroy Munro played the new pipe organ at the church in an excellent manner, his demonstrations on the pipe organ being as good, or perhaps better, than his work as a pianist.

It was the initiation for the new organ.

Each of the artists on the program more than pleased the large crowd who attended the concert.

Tonight will be "Education Night" at the church. The address will be delivered by Dr. Hugh Gibson, general secretary of the Sunday School association of Southern California. Dr. Gibson will speak on the topic, "The Life That Lifts." Special guests will be members of the Burbank school board, the superintendent and teachers of the local public schools, the pupils of the high school, the upper grades, and the Sunday school workers and members of the Young People's societies of the city.

This same evening (Friday evening) the ladies of the Aid Society will serve their "birthday dinner" in the church social hall, from 5:30 to 7 o'clock.

A splendid musical program also will be given tonight. The program follows:

Organ Prelude—Saint d'Armor.... .....Elgar
Mr. Moore.
Anthem—Angel ioces Ever Singing ..... Neidlinger
Quartet—The King of Love My Shepherd It ..... Shelley (Mmes. Attwater and Jones. Messrs. Ricketts and Munro.
Anthem—Heaven and Earth .... Display ..... Mendelsohn
Organ—Fanfare ..... Dubois
Mr. Moore

I Am Humanity's Greatest Benefactor

I am God's most powerful instrument for good—without me, man is beast.

I am the cradle of all humanity.

I am of the essence of life's greatest happiness—family-hood.

I shelter the babe in its cradle; I inspire men to Achievement.

I am the foundation of democracy, the basis of civilization.

Men have died for my defense, nations have prospered through my influence.

Love, Faith, Ambition are nurtured by me.

I am Balm to the Weary—a Boon to the happy; I am life's closest companion.

To partake of all my gifts, you must own me—have me for your very own, for I can serve you best when I am really yours.

I am humanity's greatest benefactor.

FOX-WOODSON LUMBER CO.

BETTER HOMES WEEK STARTS MONDAY, OCT. 9

The Better Homes week, nationally celebrated from October 9 to 14, is the intensive movement toward putting the national home in order.

Since the beginning of the year, strikes, apprehensive fear of results of industrial conflicts have exercised their feverish influence upon each individual home in the national home of the American people.

The outward and visible sign has been the retrenching throughout the land—furniture needed for comfort remained in the stores, unpurchased; paint, needed on the homes of the people of the country—home loving, prideful people, has been neglected.

In a word, each home owner, or home seeker, has stood at tension on guard over his dollars, fearing expenditures.

And across the broad land there has been just a shadow of shabbiness created over all the dwellings—a graying something that makes us all shabby.

With the passing of the strike conflicts, with the start again of the great tourist tide to Southern California, with the anticipation of trade, of new life in the industrial peace and plenty that now hovers over the Southwest, comes participation in the national BETTER HOME week—the week consecrated to loosening of the hard kept dollars for conversion into comforts denied, to the brightening up of rooms with furniture, to the painting of homes, to the buying of equipment to make life easier and well for those in the broad land.

In Glendale, with the setting in of fall, the movement toward bettering the homes is stronger than in any part of the United States.

For Glendale residents know that they will have in the city this winter more than the usual number of visitors, who may become neighbors in the years to come. So with the best possible appearance, Glendale home owners are endeavoring to make the best popular appearance before the newcomers.

It behooves every resident to present the best front to the visitors of this winter as he possibly can, to show that but little of the shabbiness of the other sections of the country has touched here.

TEACHING THE NEW FAMILY

"We've been quite gay down our way," said the out-of-town customer, as he accepted a cigar. "We usually jog along in a simple sort of fashion, entertaining very informally, but there's a new family come to town in a house on the hill, and they've set quite a pace."

"New families aren't popular as a general thing," Wilkinson observed. "What sort of social doings did they get up, and how did they manage?"

"It came in very naturally," said the out-of-town customer. "It wasn't as forced as it might sound. There was a celebrity in town to talk of Russian relief, and, of course, they offered to entertain him. I can't remember what his awful name is, but, anyhow, they decided to give a dinner and invite a lot of the old line who might be persuaded to go down in their pockets for the sufferers. Of course, when the charitable object is the helping of the starving, we Americans always give a dinner, so, in due time, we received engraved invitations to the real thing."

* * *

"I suppose the idea is that good things to eat will choke you if you realize that other folks are starving?" said Wilkinson. "Is that it, perhaps?"

"I give it up," laughed the out-of-town customer. "Anyway, the invitations made a big sensation. The wife had to have a new gown and my dress suit had to be gone over by a city tailor and completely modernized, so there was some stir in our house, believe me. Then someone had the brilliant idea that we offer our own maids to assist Mrs. Davis with the dinner. We haven't any caterer, and we live too far from the city to get hold of one very conveniently, so Mrs. Davis fairly jumped at the suggestion. The maids were pleased, too, as Mrs. Davis offered to pay them well, and they were very keen to eat the dinner themselves, and so get a little of the unusually festive occasion."

"You're a lucky lot to have maids to offer like that," said Wilkinson.

"They are mostly factory hands too old or decrepit to work at anything else," laughed the out-of-town customer. "I might better call them hired girls than maids. Well, we talked of that dinner for days, and we tried to imagine all the wonderful things we were going to have. I had been off on a trip, and I got home just in time to dress hurriedly and get there. I had had a late breakfast and no lunch, but my wife told me I mustn't take even so much as a crust before we left, as it would be sure to spoil my appetite, and then I might not be able to enjoy the fine things they'd give us."

"I don't wonder you were thrilled," said Wilkinson. "Did the banquet come up to your expectations?"

"Did it?" repeated the out-of-town customer disgustedly. "I should say not! Why, do you know, we hardly had anything to eat. We all considered the meal just begun when the hostess rose, and we realized that that was all there was to it. I never was more surprised in all my life when it dawned on me that that was the end of the dinner party. Why, I eat more for breakfast every morning."

"What was the great idea?" asked Wilkinson. "Did something go wrong?"

"We asked our maid Maggie when we got home," the out-of-town customer said, "and she told us that everything went perfectly. That was all they had planned to give us, she said, and for her part she thought them mighty stingy. We ate a lot after we got home, we were so starved."

* * *

"Maybe they wanted you to sympathize with the Russians," laughed Wilkinson. "I'll bet you never went there again."

"There's where you are wrong," chuckled the out-of-town customer. "We were there night before last at another dinner. The whole town had been giving things in the meantime, but we—my wife and myself—don't attempt dinners ourselves. This time we ate heartily at home before starting out."

"Smart folks," said Wilkinson. "You surely were wise."

"Oh, I don't know," retorted the out-of-town customer. "We weren't any of us the least bit hungry, and she served the finest 8-course dinner I ever sat down to in my life. Maybe we weren't sore!"

"What a good joke on you!" Wilkinson laughed. "But what made her reform?"

"As near as we could make out," laughed the out-of-town customer, "Mrs. Davis sent her maid to ask the community's various cooks to help her, and all of them declined to assist because they had to get dinners that night at home, as we simple town people had been starved the other time. The lesson must have cost her a pretty penny, for she sent all the way to Springfield for the caterer she had!"

DEFENDANTS ASK JURY IN LOCAL LIQUOR CASE

Three alleged transporters of liquor were arraigned before Judge Crawford in the Burbank recorder's court Wednesday morning, each pleading not guilty to the charges and requesting that they be granted a trial by jury.

The date of the case was set for 10 o'clock Thursday. The names of the defendants are:

Pierre Pinoges, age 36 years, engineer, Glendale; Lester Gilliland, age 36 years, ice wagon driver, Glendale; Donald C. Anderson, age 23 years, mechanic, Burbank.

It is alleged that when the Burbank officers searched the car in which this trio were riding they found a pint of brandy.

They were represented by an attorney in court yesterday morning, the date on which they were scheduled to be arraigned. They furnished bail at the time arrested, which will hold good until the trial Thursday.

It was the first time that defendants in a liquor case in the Burbank recorder's court have asked for a jury trial during the roundup of alleged prohibition law violators during the past months.

In order that the defendants might have the opportunity to enter their pleas, the preliminary session of the Frazer case was interrupted. The arraignment of the trio of alleged liquor transporters only required about five minutes.

BIG DEMAND FOR EAST SIDE STORES

Many Business Buildings Needed in Broadway-Glendale Commercial Section

An active campaign for more store rooms in the Glendale avenue and Broadway business section to accommodate the many merchants who wish to locate in that locality was started at the meeting Thursday noon of the Glendale Advancement association. It was stated by President Ingledue that during the past few weeks there has been a great increase in the number of calls for storerooms in that section.

"It is a shame the way we are compelled to turn prospective store keepers away," said President Ingledue. "It is not conducive to the growth of this locality to have to turn these men down. They are wide awake merchants who see in this section an opportunity to build up a successful business. What we must have right now is a few enterprising property owners who will come forward with a proposition to put up a number of buildings at once. We want these store buildings right now. The merchants are waiting for them and there is little doubt that a large number of rooms of this character would be filled just as quickly as they could be put up.

"Just this week I had two appeals for storerooms. I had to tell them that we could not accommodeate them, and they were compelled to go elsewhere. One of these men was a big storekeeper in one of the middle west cities. He is ready and anxious to move his stock to Glendale at once. He sees the handwriting on the wall. He realizes that the eastern business section of Glendale is ready for a wonderful, substantial growth. The feeling is in the air. Folks, let us get together and see what we can do in the way of providing these much needed business buildings."

"I have been approached on quite a number of occasions recently on this very subject," said Mrs. Mabel L. Tight. "There seems to be a feeling among prospective merchants that the eastern section of Glendale is due for wonderful progress, and the newcomers want to get in and do their share of the boosting."

P. J. Hayselden, chairman of the combined railroad committee, reported that everything is progressing in connection with the railroad. He stated that he could not give a complete report of the money subscribed, as about 60 subscription lists were still out and he did not know how much money these lists represent.

Mr. Hayselden told the story of how J. E. Farnham, living in the southern end of Glendale, came into his office the other day and asked if he could do something toward the railroad proposition. He was given a subscription list, whereupon he departed. A few days later he returned, his list carrying pledges for $660. This, stated the committee chairman, was "some accomplishment."

Mrs. Tight, chairman of the hotel committee, stated that the hotel matter is now before the board of hotel commissioner, and that it was expected that some definite word will be received within a few days.

A report of tag day was given by Dr. Jessie A. Russell, who said that there was still one set of workers to report, and that when all of the amounts have been turned it, the tag day total will have reached $1200.

LONGFELLOW'S BIRTHPLACE MEMORIAL

In an effort to keep the birthplace of Henry W. Longfellow, beloved American poet, the property of the people of the United States, the International Longfellow Society has sent out a nation-wide appeal for aid. This appeal, in the form of an announcement is issued by Arthur C. Jackson, President of the Society, and calls attention to the mortgage of many years' standing which still hangs over the celebrated birthplace at Portland, Me.

The International Longfellow Society was founded several years ago, announcing as its object the restoration and perpetuation of the great American poet's home, which was to remain the property of the American people.

At the time of its inception the movement was publicly endorsed by such public men as the late President Roosevelt, Chief Justice Taft, Cardinals O'Connell and Dougherty, Rabbis Hirsch and Enelow, bishops of all denominations and governors of many states. More than a thousand Women's Clubs, representing every state in the Union, by small contributions made possible the purchase of the birthplace. It has been dedicated by the Governor of Maine and a distinguished assembly, as the International Longfellow Memorial. There now remains a small indebtedness on the property and there is no endowment for the future.

In order to raise the necessary funds to lift the mortgage and to carry on the work of collecting and exhibiting material relating to Longfellow's life and writings, encouraging world-wide observance of the anniversaries of his birth, and promoting study of his works, the society has devised a plan which will allow of universal participation in the project. Any child of any age who contributes twenty-five cents, or for whom a contribution of twenty-five cents is made, will receive a Life Membership Certificate in the International Longfellow Society, free from all fees or dues of any kind. Besides this the child will receive with the Society's Compliments a dainty leather-bound edition of Longfellow's famous poem, "The Courtship of Miles Standish."

The announcement goes on to state that any adult contributor of one dollar will also receive a Life Membership Certificate, along with a leather-bound edition of "Evangeline." Also any child or adult who contributes two dollars will not only be made a life member of the Society, but will receive a dainty leather-bound edition of the celebrated "Hiawatha" in two volumes.

After mentioning that all contributions should be sent by check draft or money order, payable t the International Longfellow Society, and addressed "Longfellow Birthplace, Box 747, Portland, Me., the announcement closes with the plea that the celebrated birthplac remain the property of "everyday people, to become, as Edwin Markham suggested, "a shrine and place of pilgrimage."

The peculiarities of the Hibernian temperament were quaintly illustrated by an incident which occurred once in the O. P. club. Hearing a disturbance in the lobby an official rushed there to discover a man lying on the floor, his head being periodically and scientifically bumped by an Irish opponent on top of him.

"What are you doing?" questioned the astonished beholder.

"Don't you interfere," exclaimed the Irishman, giving the head another bump. "This is an old bosom friend of mine."

OCTOBER FIRES ARE WORST OF THE YEAR

By CHARLES SHINN, Forest Examiner

It is the careless brush-burners who start a great many foothill fires and some of them destroy much timber, much watershed protection, much dry feed that the livestock needs. The land owner who starts in alone to clear and burn makes a big mistake and is apt to lose his own fences, as well as destroying some for his neighbors.

One rides through the borderlands of the National Forests at this season and sees that many hard working pioneers are still using poor little posts of buckeye and manzanita because they are less loss if they burn, whereas, good cedar posts cost $25 a hundred or even twice that before they are on the ranch. "Three times in the last 20 years," one mountain woman was heard to say—"Three times our fences have been burned by other people's carelessness with fire."

The reports of forest fires in the California Coast Ranges and Sierras made incidentally by hunters, prospectors and timber workers in the years between 1850 and the establishment of the National Forests unite in saying that there were always fires burning somewhere in sight from the beginning of the dry season until heavy rains fell. All of the early state publications emphasize this problem when, as was written in 1892: "Towards the end of the long, hot California summer all vegetation is dry and the debris on the forest floor is like tinder." It is a marvel of marvels that any forests were left when the age of forest protection began.

All authorities agree that it is necessary and perfectly practicable to put a complete end to forest fires on private and on public lands in California. It is the one great outstanding test of the efficiency of state and national forest work. A story that Gifford Pinchot used to tell to rangers ran like this: "When I was in Europe studying the forests, I was taken to see the dreadful fire we had in this Bavarian forest five years ago. It had covered less than 20 acres and was all replanted to young hand-set trees."

That is the ideal of fire protection that California expects to reach on all of her millions of acres.

BRAND CENTRAL MARKET OPENING

Sanitation Is Keynote of Equipment of the New Meat Merchant

Sanitation is the keynote of the equipment of the new "Class 'A' Meat Market," which W. Schmidt & Son opened Tuesday in the Brand Central Market at 207 North Brand boulevard.

O. W. Esselman, who has been engaged for years in the installation of market equipment throughout the state, says but few markets in the state exist with the complete and sanitary equipment found in Mr. Schmidt's new establishment.

The new meat cooling plant, preserving a temperature of between 34 and 36 degrees, is the last word in modern refrigeration. It was built by the Glendale Mill Company and has a floor space of 18x9x11. The cooling plant is lined with cork throughout.

The "Class 'A' market" is equipped with a smoke house, a sausage cutter of the latest type and roomy show cases cooled by ammonia pipes. The machinery of the shop will be open for inspection at all times, Mr. Schmidt announces.

The Brand Central Market looks forward to a formal opening in the near future when a bakery and vegetable stand will be added to the grocery, light lunch and pickle counters and meat counter which now occupy the place.

Mr. Schmidt is an expert in his line and should enjoy a good business. He has purchased a home in Glendale.

Cornelius Cole, former representative in congress, and senator from California, is shown here with his daughter, Mrs. Mary Cole Brown, 68 years old, at the birthday party given for the centenarian at his home in Los Angeles. The former senator was born in Lodi, Seneca county, N. Y. He is the son of a Revolutionary War captain. He was graduated from Wesleyan university, which shortly before he celebrated his 100th birthday conferred upon him the degree of LL. D. Senator Cole was a friend of President Lincoln and accompanied him to Gettysburg when he made his famous address.

Climbing back on his motorcycle, Officer Gates soon overtook the driver of the flivver, arrested him and then escorted him to the Glendale city jail, as the affair occurred in that city.

Charges of intoxication, operating an auto while intoxicated and driving an auto in a reckless manner is what the driver of the flivver faces in the Glendale city court. He was held without bond, although he had more than $300 in cash on his person at the time of his arrest, it was reported.

ATTORNEY FILES NOTICE THAT NEW TRIAL WILL BE ASKED FOR FRAZIER FOLLOWING CONVICTION

Superintendent Convicted by Jury on Charge of Reckless Driving Will Ask for Another Trial, According to His Attorney, Walter Fischer

DEPUTY DISTRICT ATTORNEY GETS CONVICTION

Witnesses for State Appeared Confused During Rapid-Fire Cross-Examination by Attorney Fischer, But Stated Defendant Drove Auto Recklessly

A notice that motion for a new trial for George P. Frazier, who was convicted by a jury in the Burbank recorder's court late Wednesday afternoon on a charge of reckless driving, was made by Walter Fischer, attorney for the defendant.

The verdict of the jury was brought in by the jury following deliberations lasting about three-quarters of an hour, their verdict ending eight hours of the trial before Judge Crawford and affirming the charge of the state that Frazier was driving his auto in a reckless manner previous to an accident that is alleged to been responsible for the injury that later caused the death of Frazier's wife, Mrs. Ina M. Frazier.

The tragedy occurred shortly after noon on Sept. 17 last on San Fernando boulevard and Scott road, according to the charges and the evidence submitted.

Attorney Fischer's rapid fire cross-examination of the state's witnesses caused considerable confusion among the witnesses, but all stuck to their story that Mr. Frazier was driving his car recklessly, as charged, previous to the mishap.

John F. Burton, deputy district attorney, conducted the case in a capable manner, his closing address, in which he asked for a conviction, being especially strong.

Judge Crawford, who was called upon to settle many arguments between the deputy district attorney and Frazier's attorney relative to the submission of certain evidence, handled the case in an excellent manner.

The judge's instruction to the jury was especially well made. As to the rule that a defendant is considered innocent until proved guilty and that he must be proved guilty without there being a reasonable doubt, the judge instructed the jury to consider all of the points brought out by the testimony as to the "reasonable doubt," and not just one of the points.

The persons who served as jurors were the first twelve persons called, not a one being challenged, the first time in Judge Crawford's judicial career, which totaled about eight years in Ohio previous to his coming to California, according to the judge.

The fact that the jury was comprised of persons more intelligent than the average was frequently commented on by court attaches and others.

The members of the jury were: Frank J. Crockett, foreman; Clyde Fainot, Mark Van Luverun, William F. Craig, R. D. Johnson, George T. Richard, Frank Clark, F. L. Dodge, Mrs. Ella Johnson, J. E. Luttge, Christ Johnson and Mrs. D. Locke.

Mr. Frazier, who is superintendent of the Burbank plant of the Andrew Jergens company, did not testify in his own behalf.

In earlier statements he attributed the tragedy that resulted in the death of his wife by her own actions in leaping from the auto while he was looking in the opposite direction.

During the trial Wednesday, the defendant appeared to be composed, but he appeared to be nervous during the deliberations of the jury.

The witnesses who testified for the prosecution were Mr. and Mrs. W. Bombard, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Gadberry, Rev. E. A. Main and George R. Cole, city marshall.

Rev. Main was accorded the distinction of being a witness for both sides. Following his testimony as a state's witness, he was held by Attorney Fischer as a witness for the defendant.

Fred G. Beckner, civil engineer and surveyor, was the only witness for the defendant, except Rev. Main. The latter was used as a witness for the defendant to testify that he showed Mr. Beckner the spot on the road where Mrs. Frazier's body was found and where the Frazier car was stopped following the mishap.

While the witness for the state gave conflicting reports as to distances and as the probable rate of speed of the Frazier car, they all agreed on a number of points, namely:

That the Frazier car was traveling at an excessive rate of speed before the accident occurred.

That the Frazier car was traveling at such a high rate of speed when it turned the corner of San Fernando boulevard and Scott road that it "skidded" off the paved highway.

That the place where the Frazier car was stopped following the accident was 100 feet or more from the spot where the body of Mrs. Frazier was lying.

The members of the jury panel who were called, but whose names were not drawn to serve were: J. S. Cockran, E. H. Harding, Frank Clark, A. R. Graham, Mrs. Helen O'Connell, Mrs. Carrie L. Rogers.

Mrs. Mary Denhart, M. S. Jones, Mrs. Amanda J. Koppes, Chester V. Birch, J. B. Cambron, William Coryell, Thomas H. Huntley, Mrs. L. M. Johnson, Mrs. Priscilla Griswold.

Mrs. Sarah Kimball, Mrs. Elizabeth Knox, Evelyn Knox, Fred Collins, Richard D. Johnson, John E. Luttge, Charles O. Malone, Henry A. Stoctper, William F. Craig, H. D. Gurney, Charles Hough, E. D. Music.

Judge Crawford excused Mrs. O'Connell before the names of the jurors were called during court, owing to the fact that she has small children at home.

The judge volunteered the information that any woman called for jury service would be excused if they had small children.

BIG DEMAND FOR EYE GLASSES IN BURBANK

Dr. Ervin, Optometrist, Is Working Overtime These Days

Breakgin all previous records, Dr. V. P. Ervin, prominent Burbank optometrist, has been unusually busy during the past few weeks, making it necessary for him to work overtime.

Although he replenished his stock of glasses only a few weeks ago, another large stock has been secured by Dr. Erwin, making his stock one of the largest, as one of the most modern, in the San Fernando Valley.

Fond Mother—Jack writes home and says that he has broken seven of the college records—one of them the discus record.

Poor Dad—More expense! I suppose I'll have to send him a check to cover the damage.

MOTORCYCLE CLUB HOLDS RUN TO SAN DIEGO

Burbank Rider Included in Chase, Lowering Old Record

With a letter from the Los Angeles Motorcycle club to the president of the San Diego Motorcycle club, Sid Chambers, who is connected with the Burbank Daily Press, and other members of the Los Angeles club team, left Los Angeles at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday night and arrived in San Diego at 11:10 o'clock.

They left San Diego at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning, arriving in Los Angeles at 4:32 o'clock.

The return trip was made in two hours and 32 minutes, lowering the record held by the San Diego club by eight minutes.

An old lady in a 'bus noticed that a man sitting in front of her had his arm in a sling. She was a very inquisitive old person and couldn't refrain from leaning forward and asking: "My poor man, what have you done to your arm?"

"Broken it, ma'am," the man replied.

"And how did you break it?" continued the old lady.

"When I was patting myself on the back, ma'am," he said.

"Patting yourself on the back! Whatever were you doing that for?"

He looked hard at her for a moment, and then said:

"For minding my own business, ma'am."

Truths in Epigram

Hold the fleet angel fast until he bless thee.—Longfellow.

There are no little events with the heart; it magnifies everything. It places in the same scale the falling of an empire and the dropping of a woman's glove; and the glove generally weighs more than the empire.—Honore de Balzac.

THIS GOVERNMENT'S PART

Secretary Hughes explains very courteously that this government is doing all it can to allay the troubles in the Near East. The statement he formulated was in response to the appeal of a bishop that the Turk be driven back, and that for this purpose the army and navy of the United States be employed. The administration believes it to be the duty of America to urge pacific methods. The victory achieved by war shows a lack of permanency. So far as repelling the Turk is concerned, the forces of civilized powers already there are sufficient.

The probability that participation of the United States in another European war would have a tendency whatever the ultimate outcome, to make the war more terrible and widespread, is worth considering. It is infinitely important that there be no war. If the threatened conflict could be held in abeyance for a time, there would be a chance for readjustments, such as might postpone it for all time. The nations of Europe are not eager to hear the roar of battle again. They want peace. It is by reason of such desire they regard Constantine as having been recreant to the interests of civilization when he stirred the Turk to malign activity, and brought about the present status.

For years there have been rumors of a clash between white races and colored. Agitators, seeking to bring this about, have sown the seed of discord in Asia, Africa, India, everywhere there was chance that it might fall on fertile soil. A clash now would mean to millions in those lands that the crucial moment had arrived. Even a situation involving the Turk alone, needs to be handled with extreme finesse, lest it involve an untold host. Nevertheless, if the Turk refuses to go back, the prospect is that he must be driven back at the point of the bayonet, and at any risk. This is the penalty civilization pays for having been blind in its greed for centuries. But the duty falls upon those responsible, rather than on distant America.

NOT AN ISSUE

It is possible that some people may be misled by the expression of desire and intent to change the prohibition law. The matter, without excuse, has been erected into the semblance of a political issue. It is not a real issue. The proponents of it must know this. To change the Volstead law is easy enough to talk about, but it can't be done, and the breath expended in the ostensible effort to change it is wasted. When prohibition was voted into the constitution it was put there to stay. Nobody could claim that the enforcement has been perfect. To eliminate a traffic that had attained immense volume, could not have been regarded in advance, by any thoughtful person, as the task of an hour or of a year. These politicians who talk of changing the Volstead act, really are talking of changing the constitution, which is beyond their power to change. So far as the enforcement of prohibition has lacked completeness, conditions merely spur the enemies of the rum trade to renewed activities. Among these enemies must be reckoned a large majority of the citizens. Then how will a comparative handful of malcontents take out of the constitution that which the great majority put in?

As well might a stump speaker, with hope of success, declare a belief in slavery and advocate its restoration.

TWO METHODS OF ATTACK

Dr. Robert A. Millikan of the California Institute of Technology, addressing the student body recently said this:

"Mr. Bryan is doing more harm to Christianity today than Bob Ingersoll did, or anyone who ever came right out and attacked it. All of us have an opportunity to use our heads, which Mr. Bryan does not do, for straight, objective thinking, and to get a little old-fashioned religion."

This is a far more effective approach to exposure of Bryan fallacies than made by the correspondent of a Los Angeles paper. The latter mentions "a certain fellow by the name of Bryan who is either a hypocrite or is obsessed with the idea," etc. However, the latter had in mind the Bryan attitude on prohibition, where as the scientist was considering Bryan in relation to evolution. That which the scientist said is worthy of consideration. That which the correspondent wrote could have no effect but to bring contempt upon himself. Even in matters controversial, it pays to be a gentleman.

Bryan does not have the support of intelligent and educated people when he inveighs against evolution. He has not the support of churches. Every school of standing is ready to confute him with absolute evidence. To wave aside the mute testimony of the everlasting hills may be done with graceful gesture and the posture of sincerity, but it must fail to convince. Dr. Millikan is engaged in research. If Bryan were correct, the doctor, with all the eminent co-workers seeking to reveal the mysteries of mundane development, would have to discard the fruits of their labors. This they could not do. Such a course would be intellectually impossible. If Bryan, instead of railing at them, were to study their teachings, he would know more of the earth on which he dwells, and yet the faith so dear to him would not be shaken. It is easy to believe in the goodness of God, and to believe also in the material facts of the universe.

STOP THE BOOTLEGGER!

As the time draws near for California to vote on the Wright measure, it is well to reflect upon the conditions which this is intended to check. The Wright measure is in complete consonance with the Eighteenth amendment. It is designed to facilitate enforcement of the amendment. It would put teeth into prohibition, and the nefarious, thieving, murderous, bootlegger would find his present calling too precarious.

Hatred of bootlegging is not all due to principle. It is not felt alone by the ardent prohibitionist who long has desired total abolition of the liquor traffic. Men who in the old days were not averse to a drink who perhaps are somewhat opposed to stringent prohibition, stand with the most zealous foe of intoxicants, in desiring that the poison now made, and hawked under false labels, be totally eliminated. They have ceased to indulge, for there is no way in which they may know that the proffered drink is not deadly. It may destroy life, dethrone reason, cause blindness. Yet the bootlegger thrives. His presence is more perilous than that of the most direful plague that ever swept the land.

Official statistics from Chicago relate the vast increase of insanity, and the increase is ascribed to illicit mixtures sold as whisky and gin. The victims crowd places of detention. Some of them have been goaded to violent crime by the dope of the bootlegger. They have figured in misdeeds too terrible for recital. To some degree similar conditions must prevail wherever the devastating product of the hidden still is sold. The federal government needs help in upholding the law. California intends to extend such help to the limit of ability. Therefore it supports the Wright law.

BABEL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

According to the Bible story the separation of the human race into various tribes, each with a different language, dates from the Tower of Babel, when the Lord smote the workers with confusion of tongues.

Dr. Frank Crane

Almost all religious legend conceive of the primitive state of man as one of unity and high perfection, from which condition the race has degenerated.

The view of the scientist, on the contrary, is that man has climbed upward from the beast that his golden age lies before him, and not behind him. Instead of coming down from the Garden of Eden by a fall, the scientist claims that man is climbing up to the Garden by growth.

The two theories may not be so irreconcilable as they seem. At least they agree in this, that as far back as we can trace the history of mankind there has been a steady climb, whether the low condition in the past was due to "Adam's Fall" or to the "Heritage of the Beast."

And one marked element of the debasement of man in the past has been his constant tendency to fight, due to the fact of mankind's dismemberment into various nations, tribes, and tongues.

The great task of humanity now and for the future is to cure the evil of Babel.

Whatever the millennium may be, it will never come except as the unification of the discordant groups of the world.

All progress in civilization has been due to the degree to which men have discovered how to cooperate and how much more pleasure and profit there is in working together than there is in contention.

Every war in history has been a mistake. It has been the outcropping of the ignorance of people who did not know how to adjust their differences in some better way than violence.

The fundamental healing thought which alone can save the nations is that we are all of one body.

As Nature abhors a vacuum, so civilization abhors confusion.

No greater step forward can be made by labor in the United States than to realize that its prosperity is fictitious when it implies the misery of labor in Russia, in China or in Peru.

Capital is beginning to glimpse this. It is beginning to see that investments in Chicago have a very distinct connection with investments in Belgrade and Calcutta.

God did not make nations. He made men.

The unity of the world is not to be brought about by bringing together discordant elements that do not belong to each other, for, essentially, every nation belongs to every other nation.

The human race can have no health or soundness until it realizes that its safety, its prosperity, and its welfare, in every particular, depend upon the degree to which it can overcome its divisions and cure the curse of Babel.

DISCUSSION CLUB

(Join)

G. H. K., New York: "For a long time I have been interested in your column and as a consequence I have followed it very closely. I want to call your attention to a few misusages that are seen very often in print and on which I wish you would place special emphasis in your discussion of correct English.

"The main mistake I see is the ignorance of some writers in discriminating between its and it's. It seems a pity that such a simple matter should trouble some writers. I have seen in books and in motion picture captions the use of it's for its and vice versa. Will you please lay emphasis on the difference between the two?

"I wish you would be kind enough to correct the frequent tautological uses of some adjectives. I have seen the following expression in many books: 'pure virgin', 'bad cold', 'bad storm', and many others of similar character. It would appear that there are 'impure virgins' as well as 'pure virgins', good or nice colds, and a good storm. I believe that the above mistakes are interesting enough to warrant your using them in your valuable and useful column."

It's is a contraction of it is; its is the possessive case of the pronoun it.—W. C. N.

Tom Paprocki, Brooklyn, N. Y.: "Being a daily reader in your paper I am very much interested in your little article 'The Right Word'. It appears to me the word 'correct' should be used in place of 'right' since your column is devoted to the use of proper English."

Yesterday's Error

"To settle an argument please state 'Yes' or 'No', whether the following is a sentence in the exact definition of the word. 'What is three sixes and two more'."

Correctly written: To settle an argument please state "Yes" or "No" on whether the following is a sentence: "What are three sixes and two more?"

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

There is a good deal of talk of hundred per cent Americanism.

As if it were something that could be weighed and measured and tested.

By the same scheme there could be ten per cent and twenty per cent and fifty per cent and ninety per cent Americanism.

Which of course could not be Americanism at all.

* * *

Gold is gold.

There is no ten per cent gold.

There may be ten per cent of gold in a ton of refuse and alloy and rock.

But when we get the gold out it is hundred per cent.

It is all gold.

* * *

So the spirits of splendid men and women are hundred per cent spirits if we can get them away from the rock and alloy and refuse.

But a good many spirits are alloyed with non-essentials.

They are tinctured with the elements of selfishness and thoughtlessness.

And the pure gold of them remains often lost to the service of the world.

* * *

We have splendid examples in this land of hundred per cent Americanism.

Examples to which we can turn in time of wonder and inquiry.

Men and women whose names and deeds stand out like beacon lights.

* * *

They are the men and women who put country above self.

Who forgot selfishness in the service of the nation.

Who gave all.

Who did not offer ten per cent or fifty per cent or ninety per cent of their spirits.

But who offered all,

And gave all if necessary.

* * *

They were what you might call Americans. Real Americans.

They did not designate themselves with a percentage.

But they dedicated themselves to the service of America.

Liberty, property, life itself they offered and in many instances gave.

* * *

So when we are considering Americanism we need to recall the high spirits of the founders of the republic.

Washington, Hamilton, Franklin, Jefferson.

And the brave men and women who fought for us that we might have a nation at all.

The heroes of Valley Forge.

The men who struggled and suffered during those seven years of bloodshed and hunger and cold and suffering.

* * *

And then there were the saviors of the nation.

Lincoln, perhaps the greatest American of all.

And that body of heroic men whose numbers are now small, who went through the other four years of bloodshed and sacrifice.

And through all the history of the republic we find Americans.

* * *

In the late world war.

The same type of men, glad to serve, strong to battle, willing to die.

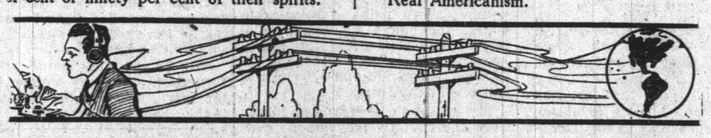
And in these piping times of peace?

You, for instance?

Have you that spirit.

Society above the individual desire; the nation above self; the common good before personal ease or comfort or wealth or honor.

Real Americanism.



SONGS OF THE POST'S POETS

THE FLOWERS—William Brighty Rands, 1823-1880.

When Love arose in heart and deed
To wake the world to greater joy,
"What can she give me now?" said Greed,
Who thought to win some costly toy.

He flung them down and went his way,
He cared no jot for thyme or rose;
But boys and girls came out to play,
And some took these and some took those.

Love rose, he ran, he stoop'd, he clutch'd;
And soon the flowers, that Love let fall,
Greed's hot grasp were fray'd and smutch'd,
And Greed said, "Flowers! Can this be all?"

Red, blue, and white, and green and gold;
And at their touch the dew return'd,
And all the bloom a thousandfold—
So red, so ripe, the roses burn'd!

SOME RECENT SCIENTIFIC FACTS

What makes the cook smash dishes, even when she is not angry, and what causes a factory hand to unintentionally damage production, has been puzzled out by experts of the National Institute of Industrial Psychology.

Pieces of mental grit get into human machinery and play hob. A large amount of breakage is due to mental irritation which is largely a result of fatigue. The worker who is not tired has sufficient energy to use in checking his irritability; the worker who has been performing mechanical motions all day shows his boredom by crashing something to the floor.

Breakages become epidemic at times, the British experts have found. Where groups of workers are engaged in handling the same material, excitement, fluster, hurry, or irritation in one section quickly spreads to another. Where there is a regular flow of material with rush periods it is found that both the excitement of the rush and the reaction of the slack time damage efficiency and incidentally damage the things that are being handled. By introducing a steady flow of material there is a noticeable rise in efficiency.

Glaciers both help and hinder the miner, says Dr. Milnor Roberts, dean of the Washington School of Mines.

The great ice rivers of the past have laid bare rich deposits of ore in passing over mountains. The mines of British Columbia offer many instances of ores formed at lower depths, but now appearing unweathered at the surface. Their change of relative position has been brought about through erosion and a final sweep by the ice.

But while the glacier has in the ages gone laid bare the riches of the mountain, just as one might cut away half an apple and expose the seeds to view, the surviving glaciers of today do not always help the prospector. A prospector near Doubtful lake used to dig through glacial ice for some distance before striking his vein in the solid rock. By next season his tunnel through the ice had moved down the valley a little distance and he had to drive another one. He soon had several useless blind entrances lined up in a row.

A new fuel and other new products that may be manufactured by catalytic oxidation from low grade petroleum has been developed by Prof. J. F. James of the Carnegie Institute of Technology. The methods have proved successful in the laboratory stage, and give promise of practicability on a commercial scale.

The properties of this new fuel which is obtained by partial oxidation of petroleum may cause it to be used industrially in kerosene engines or blended with gasoline for use in gasoline engines. Although it has a somewhat lower fuel value than ordinary kerosene it undergoes much better combustion in the internal combustion engine.

Cheap varnish gum, paint film substitutes, lubricants, and frothing oil in ore flotation mixtures may also be made from petroleum by this catalytic oxidation process.

The process works best on oils that have a lower market value than Pennsylvania petroleum. The presence of sulphur compounds and of unsaturated hydrocarbons is no drawback to the application of the process, as oils containing these bodies oxidize more readily. This makes the process applicable to many refining wastes than now find their way into the fuel oil tank.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

[Albany Journal]

Just returned from Europe, James M. Cox, who may believe that he is grooming himself for another run for the presidency, proclaimed the information that: "The United States is headed for the League of Nations, and will join the league under the pressure of an informed people."

Mr. Cox says that he has formed his opinions from conversations which he had with "all sorts of persons—statesmen, diplomats, farm hands, police," whom he questioned and whose replies he stored in his memory. These must have told him that the United States is headed as he says it is, and that there will be the "pressure of an informed people," which he mentions.

Perhaps Mr. Cox believes what he says, but if he does he is, in the possession of that belief, the most lonesome figure in the United States.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Chief of Police Oaks of Los Angeles certainly has stirred up an interesting muss. He was acting on the natural impulse of an American citizen. Whether he acted wisely is an important question not to be decided here. Were it to be decided in this column, the chief would be endorsed, right or wrong, for the good red blood in him. The whole story is interesting.

HENRY JAMES

A Mexican desperado, born in this country, however, was associated with a thieving and murderous gang that had committed many crimes. The police discovered the rendezvous of the gang, arrested some of them, and awaited the coming of the rest. The Mexican arrived. He shot a policeman dead, and fled. For a long time this "Little Phil" could not be traced. Occasionally he would write a note to Oaks, gloating over the murder, and declaring that he would kill every policeman who disturbed him; that if they got him, then his comrades would get them. This was the adding of wanton insult to deep injury.

At last the Mexican was arrested in Mexico for a crime perpetrated there. When the Mexican authorities discovered his identity, through the efforts of Oaks to extradite him, they promptly forgave the capital crime, defied the American overtures, and made a pet of Little Phil. Needless to say this was not to the liking of Oaks. Therefore he determined to defeat Mexican chicanery, and bring the murderer back. An effort was made to shanghai the fugitive, but it was not wholly successful. The methods employed were not gentle, and in the scrimmage Little Phil acquired a broken head or something like that, and at this writing appears likely to pass to another jurisdiction altogether.

The authorities of Mexico are said to be displeased. Very likely they are. When they became the accomplices of an escaped murderer, their personal feelings ceased to have value. Now they want this government to let them have Chief Oaks to play with. Perhaps on a strictly legal basis, as between two decent nations, they would be entitled to have him, but the basis is 50 per cent lacking; which alters the case.

Monarchist organizations of Europe are said to be seeking the restoration of kings in every place from which the force of circumstances has so tilted thrones that the occupants have slidden off. The movement is supposed to embrace lands from Portugal to Russia, inclusive. The people who have time to dream in this fashion can't be a very busy or useful lot. When royalty gets into the discard, it doesn't come back.

Russia continues to send notes of protest against the blockade of the Dardanelles, thus wasting a considerable of its substance on stamps. Perhaps a wiser correspondence would be directed to its friend, the truculent Turk, begging him to get back where he belongs.

An attack upon English girls does not come with good grace from Elinor Glyn. Before the passing years had robbed her of the distinction, she had been an English girl herself. Now she charges them with bad manners and habits. She objects to their way of wearing clothes. She misses the velvet voices of old. She proclaims the girls revolting to men. Elinor is harsh, probably unduly harsh. If her earlier literary work had any influence at all, it certainly was degrading. Perhaps, if there have been the changes she thinks she sees, some of the fault must be ascribed to her.

There is no statement at hand as to the value of eggs in Kansas; but they are not worth that.

Many bootleggers have used automobiles in their business. When caught they asserted that the machines were the property of their wives. One man admitted that he had taken the machine without the knowledge of his wife. He thought that this would save the vehicle from confiscation, but the plan did not work. The judge told him that he ought to be prosecuted for using a machine without consent of the owner, and soaked him with a $150 fine. The way of the transgressor is hard, if the transgressor has the bad luck to be caught.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

The Missus had one of her profound moments last night at the Tuckers. Maybe the conversation was heading in a direction she did not like—a far-sighted person, mind you—but at any rate she placed one of the standard conversational cards on the table.

"No play ever written," said she, with that far-away air that I razz her about, "is as dramatic as every day life."

Of course the Tuckers took up the challenge and the Missus got the worst of it, for the Tuckers are chuck full of literature and art. She had retired in defeat when Mrs. Tucker said, incidentally, that she had learned how to do facial massage. Questions followed.

"I learned how to do it," said she, "during the four months when Tommy was out of a job. I used to massage the lines of worry out of his face, so he could go down town smiling."

I knew something of that period and guessed more. Tommy had had an unwarranted run of bad luck. He was unjustly suspected of the worst sort of bad judgment. For four months he went down town "to business" each morning and came back home at night. His business was that of looking for a job. Before he found it he was down to his last $10 note. Yet during the four months he kept himself immaculately dressed. He was gay—even careless—in his demeanor. He gave the impression that he could have had a score of positions but that he was looking for just the right one.

"The day I found my present place I had pawned my watch," he told me long afterward.

Mrs. Tucker played a magnificent second to him, too. There never was a whimper from her. She even lost money at bridge when that money was the rent money. She won it back again, but no matter. She lost it like a little heroine, so that the gossipy ladies who played bridge with her could never have been convinced that the Tommy Tuckers were on the ragged edge of need. Night and morning she massaged Tommy's face, and the droopy lines were ironed out and new ones of courage and optimism and confidence grew under her soft fingers.

Yet the Tommy Tuckers defeated my Missus when she asserted that the greatest dramas are not those found in books.

GREAT SCOTT IS FIGHTING HARD FOR YANKS

By ROBERT L. RIPLEY

Everett W. (Deacon) Scott, the Yanks' great shortstop, finished the 1922 season with his remarkable record of consistency still intact. This make his seventh consecutive season without a day off—a record that will probably never be approached again.

Year.	Games.
1916	103
1917	157
1918	126
1919	138
1920	154
1921	154
1922	154
Total	986

Scott's life on the diamond preaches that the man should be attached to his work, should give the best that is in him toward making a success, and that clean living, perserverance, and the will to do better every day will eventually bring its reward.

As a reslult of his consistency, Scott has risen to a point where baseball critics and experts consider him the greatest short fielder in the game today.

Scott spent $40 recently in order to reach Chicago in time to participate in a game after the train he was on had been wrecked. It is just an instance of what he would do to get into the lineup every day.

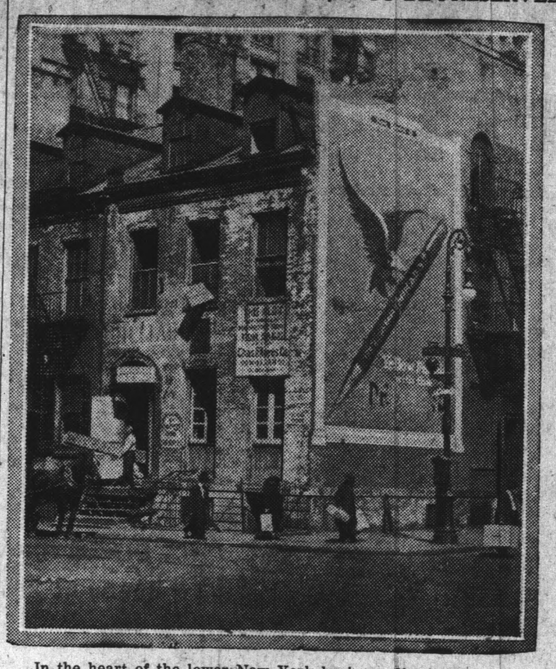
"I guess I must be lucky," he said in discussing the incident. "That was the third time I almost made a miss of it. The first time was back in 1918 after I had played about 550 consecutive games with the Boston Red Sox. I was going pretty good at the time and hadn't been hurt or anything, but one morning I bobbled up with a boil over my right eye, which was not only extremely painful, but practically closed my eye.

"I doubt if I could have played if I had wanted to, but Manager Ed Barrow gave me no choice in the matter. He told me to stay away from the ball park and I did. Just as luck would have it, however, it rained like all possessed that afternoon, the game was postponed, and by the following day I was ready to resume my accustomed duties.

"Another time we were playing in Philadelphia, and Wykoff was pitching to us in batting practice. He threw me a couple of wild ones which almost knocked me down, and as I started back to the bench I turned my head to tell him he ought to practice pitching through a barrel. While my head was turned I walked between Waite Hoyt and the catcher with whom he was warming up and a fast one hit me back of the ear. I was 'out' for twenty minutes, but recovered in time to play the entire game.

"Now I am train-wrecked and have to spend about seven hours and forty dollars on interburban trolleys and taxicabs to keep my record intact. I managed to save it, however, and it looks as though I'd be able to reach the thousand mark."

PRESIDENT MONROE'S N. Y. RESIDENCE, NOW A JUNKSHOP, IS TO BE PRESERVED



In the heart of the lower New York business district, at Lafayette and Prince streets, is a little stone house in which James Monroe lived and died. The name of the purchaser has not been learned, but it was bought recently and is to be restored and preserved for histroic purposes. The photograph shows how ruined the place is now, after years of neglect.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

MARY ELLEN STEA MS HER VOICE

It was one of the warmest days of the year.

Mary Ellen Lee, playing tennis in the sun, threw off her sweater. After the last set she went off carelessly and sat in the shadow of the club house. It was just dusk.

Then it began to rain.

Mary Ellen felt shivery, and to her own surprise her throat felt "queer."

Mary Ellen went home conscious of a tight feeling in her throat and a "warm, perspiry sensation," as she explained to her mother.

And in the morning she woke up voiceless.

At first she was frightened.

Then she recalled the days when, as a little girl, she had frequently had croup.

Like the Old Croupy Feeling

"It feels just the same, mother. That tightened, queer feeling in my throat and an utterly gone feeling when I attempt to talk," she whispered, going into her mother's room in her kimono with her hair down, and looking as much like a little girl as any girl of sixteen looks with her hair in a cascade of curls down her back.

"If you only would remember about getting overheated and then cooling off suddenly, darling," said the patient woman who was her mother. She was not alarmed because she knew that Mary Ellen had laryngitis, which means an inflammation of the larynx. The larynx is the upper part of the windpipe, or the organ of the voice.

Mary Ellen's mother was a woman of quick decisions.

"You must stay in the house today and get your voice steamed and rest it as much as possible, and take a hot mustard footbath and lots of hot drinks," she said.

Because it was vacation time Mary Ellen demurred at first, but she knew the wisdom of her mother's "doctoring," and besides, when one cannot speak above a whisper, one cannot play tennis. So she took a hot mustard footbath. And some hot lemonade. And steamed her voice.

Mary Ellen's mother filled a kettle with boiling water. Into this she put a few drops of benzoin, which is a soothing, resinous compound procurable at any drug store. Wrapping the kettle in a big towel, she placed it on a table, and Mary Ellen sat in a chair and inhaled the steam which came from the spout of the kettle. Her head was covered with a big bath towel, so her head and face were actually in a steam tent.

At first the medicated steam made the girl cough, but soon it soothed the irritation, and after a time her voice returned. But it was hoarse and rough, and her mother said that she should not attempt to speak, but keep quite still and continue to steam her throat at intervals of three hours during the day.

The attack of voicelessness soon passed.

A few drops of eucalyptus oil would have been as soothing as the benzoin compound in the steam. The inhalation of medicated steam brings almost instant relief when one has an attack of laryngitis.

HEAVY DOCKET IN BURBANK COURT TWO DAYS

Judge Crawford to Hear Many Traffic, Booze Cases Here

A heavy docket is scheduled for the Burbank recorder's court on both Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

At the "Speeders' Session" Tuesday afternoon an unusually large number of traffic violation charges are slated to be heard by Judge Crawford.

The case of H. E. Hasting and Harry Spates, two colored men of Los Angeles, who are charged with the illegal transportation of liquor in Burbank, will be heard by Judge Crawford. The pair have been fighting the case very hard.

George F. Frazer, superintendent of the Andrew Jergens plant in Burbank, will be arraigned Wednesday on a charge of reckless driving. His case will be heard before a jury, with Judge Crawford presiding. The charge is the outgrowth of an alleged auto mishap at the turn in the highway at West San Fernando boulevard and Scott road, resulting in the loss of life to Mrs. Ina M. Frazer, the defendant's wife, according to a verdict of the coroner's jury. Mr. Frazer contends that his wife leaped from the car.

Three alleged illegal transporters of liquor in Burbank also will be arraigned Wednesday before Judge Crawford. They are: Pierre Pinoges, age 36 years, engineer, Glendale; Lester Gilliland, age 36 years, ice wagon driver, Glendale; Oonald E. Anderson, age 23 years, mechanic, Burbank.

When the latter trio were arrested last Friday it is charged by the Burbank arresting officers that a pint of brandy was found in their car. They furnished bail for their appearance in court Wednesday.

Little Dorothy, with her mother, was paying a visit to Uncle Silas. Silas was wealthy—very wealthy—and little Dorothy was vastly interested in the heathen. So one morning she appeared in front of uncle, and asked: "Uncle, dear, will you please give me something for my missionary box?" The incident took place immediately following a particularly satisfying lunch, and Uncle Silas playfully threw on the dining room table a dime, two quarters and a $5 bill, remarking: "There, dear, you can have which you like of the three." Then he watched to see what little Dorothy would do. That young person approached the table and studied the situation for fully three seconds. Then she suddenly burst out: "Mummy's always told me not to be greedy, so I'll take the littlest one. But will you please wrap it up in that crinkly bit of paper, Uncle, so as I shan't lose it?" And uncle did.

THAT INNER VOICE

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers)

Recently an interesting psychological problem was presented to me. To give it in the words of the one presenting it:

"Some years ago I was operating a sawmill in a southern state. It became necessary to put in a new and heavier saw, and after the change had been made I watched the sawing closely.

"I noticed that the base was moving slightly, owing to the looseness of a bolt. With a long wrench I started tightening the bolt. I had pulled on it not more than two or three times when, as clearly as though someone were speaking to me, I heard:

"'You can tighten that blot just as well if you stand on the other side.'

"Instantly, without knowing why, I moved to the other side. A moment later the heavy belt of the swiftly revolving saw broke and whipped across the very spot on which I had been standing. Had I not moved I could hardly have escaped fatal injuries.

"Then, for the first time, I wondered who or what had told me to move. I still am wondering the same thing."

It is, of course, permissible to theorize that here we have an instance of some occult intervention for the saving of a life. But also a much simpler explanation is available, based not on the assumption of "spirit action" but on the well-established psychological fact of subconscious perception through extraordinary acuteness of some sense organ.

Compare, for example, the experience of another man, a clergyman, who likewise heard an inner voice giving him information of great interest to him but having as purpose the mere gratifying of a hobby.

The clergyman was an ardent entomologist. Much of his spare time was given to collecting and studying butterflies and moths. One evening, after an early supper, he went to a nearby field, partly for a stroll and partly with entomological ends in view.

Walking about, he suddenly was startle to hear:

"You'll find chaonia on that oak."

No one was near him. Greatly marveling, he hastened toward a solitary oka some little distance from him. There, sure enough, resting on the tree, was a fine specimen of chaonia, a rare moth.

The clergyman did not assume that a "spirit" had intervened to lead him to the moth. He reasoned that, "out of the corner of his eye" and without conscious awareness, he must have seen it flutter past him and settle on the tree.

He reasoned, further, that because he was at the moment in a state of reverie—a state of "psychic dissociation"—there had been opportunity for the subconscious percept to rise into the field of consciousness as an auditory hallucination.

This is sound psychological reasoning. The probability would seem to be that precisely the same mechanism was at work in the case of the millman whose life was saved by the mysterious command to change his position.

Experienced in the ways of saws and belts, it is conceivable that he subconsciously perceived, out of the corner of his eye or ear, signs of the weakening of the belt. It also is conceivable that, fortunately for himself, he was at the moment in a mental state making possible a transition from the subconscious to the conscious through a voice which was nothing more than an hallucinatory expression of knowledge he already possessed.

The Demon of the Claybank

By JOHN BRECK

A tall, steep ridge of clay shouldered out of the ravine wall. It defied the eye to pass it by, as it had defied the April floods which had cut back the softer earth it was set in. It defied the prying roots of the shrubs and the creeping grasses. The crescent where the high bank followed the curve of the stream was clothed with murmurous, living green. But beyond where the furthest twigtip groped to catch the sun its face thrust forth, stark, insolent, and grim.

Did it defy even the lizard's clinging fingers? No shadowy streak ever dashed across it. Was it forbidden ground to the very birds who stirred in the thickets? Did they know how it stretched their small shadows to betray them to the hawk's keen eye? Did nothing inhabit this bleak desert in the heart of a riotous burst of spring?

The only thing which seemed to stir there was a train of tiny ants. Their line of march drew in a wavering diagonal hair-line from the roots of the lilac which leaned above its crest to the dry stones of the creekbed. It might have been laid out for them by a raindrop in the west wind, with its fall broken into tiny meanderings to avoid obstructions unmarked by a human eye, save where it dropped a wide detour below a grewsome cavern, some two inches high, sole indentation of the cliff's expanse. Had any explorers marked it down when they explored the solitary waste and chose their route where no enemy could harry them unseen? Then they were overcautious. A direct route would have passed above it.

They were on the move; every third or fourth bore a burden bigger than herself, the oval pearl of an ant larvae in its swaddling clothes, a wee, black crown showing through them, often as not headdown. Other ants scuttled back up for another trip, scaling the steep faster, if anything, than those going down. They wove in and out without regard for traffic regulations.

From that grinning cave a great mahogany spider issued forth, swung herself down on her ladder of silk, snatched the precious burden from a passing ant, and swiftly returned, without leaving so much as a footprint. The mystified bearer spung about in anguished circles, wreaking mad confusion in the line. Then she would settle down and run off empty-handed. The march would go on in the same fatal groove, while the malignant spirit of the claybank would peer out to mark another victim. Wisdom is but a blind guide when she cannot see her way. And ants are blind followers where she leads them.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK—

By E. R. WAITE,
Secretary Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce

THAT the proper place to advertise is in your local papers.

THAT because they go into every home where their advertising messages are assimilated, at a minimum of expense to the advertiser.

THAT too many merchants pass too much money over to fly-by-night advertising solicitors. The smooth one, who presents a publicity scheme that isn't worth a minute of his time or a dollar of his money, and can't possibly bring any returns.

THAT it takes some time for some merchants to learn that the same amount spent in newspaper advertising would bring good returns.

THAT these merchants should see that, which successful merchants long ago learned.

THAT of all forms of advertising, nothing yet has been found as good, as space in the papers of your own home city.
